Nazis Swiftly Drive 50 Miles Nearer To Oil Fields of Grozny

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

MOSCOW, Friday, Aug. 14.—German troops in a swift 50-mile advance into the Caucasus have reached Mineralnye Vody, only 140 air line miles from the rich Russian oil wells of Grozny, the Soviets acknowledged officially early today as heavy fighting broke out on the long-dormant front northwest of Moscow.

Nazis Threaten Dutch, Serbs With Disaster

LONDON, Aug. 13.—(P)—The German-controlled Netherlands radio tonight threatened the people of that country with "widespread bombing, devastation and starvation in the event of a United Nations' second-front invasion," Aneta Agency said.

The Yugoslav government here also announced that the Germans had threatened to wipe out all of Serbia if guerrilla activities forced the Nazis to send more occupation troops into that Balkan land.

Aneta reported the Nazi announcer in Holland as saying that the Germans planned to make their principal stand against a prospective invasion behind a wall of big fortifications. The area between this wall and the sea would undergo thorough devastation "disastrous for the thickly populated Netherlands" in the event of a German retreat, he was quoted as saying.

Prominent Hostages Held.
Two hundred or more prominent Netherlands already are held as hostages by the Germans, to be executed if Dutchmen join any second-front forces, Aneta said.

These developments came amid continuing disorders and reported executions in German-occupied Europe. The refugee governments here however were trying through broadcasts to hold in check their underground allies until a fitting moment—presumably the second front—arrives.

Several hundred Serb boys have been sent to concentration camps or deported to prevent them from joining guerrilla bands, the Yugoslavians said.

Early in August, the exile government added, German General Turned, military commander of occupied Serbia, told several hundred civil representatives in Belgrade that "if the German military command is compelled to use one more soldier than the present occupying force for the suppression of disorders this will mean the annihilation of Serbia."

Italians Reassured.
Indicative of the fighting in Yugoslavia, the Berlin radio broadcast a report that the Yugoslavians lost 3,000 dead and 9,700 taken prisoner between July 23 and August 8.

The second front idea is ever-present; the Nazi press and radio and movies are constantly telling the Germans of preparations made to resist it; France is jittery over its possibilities; the Italians have been assured by Premier Mussolini there would be no second front in Italy or elsewhere.

DNE, official German news agency, in a broadcast dispatch said a plot to blow up the German-controlled Netherlands radio station (presumably at Hilversum) had been frustrated by a new series of arrests.

Dutch Women Registered.
The Nazis already have set to work on the deadline for surrender of saboteurs who last Friday night attacked a troop train near Rotterdam. They have threatened to execute some of 1,500 prominent hostages unless the men are captured.

The Germans ordered all Dutch women between 18 and 40 years of age to register for a Nazi women's labor battalion, marking the first attempt to draft women for labor in Holland.

A Nazi column swinging south-eastward along the Rostov-Baku railway rolled through Russia's positions in the Cherkessk area to reach Mineralnye Vody. By road Grozny lies approximately 180 miles farther.

The midnight communique otherwise indicated little change in Russia's situation. The Red army still was battling the Nazis north-east of Kotelnikovskii below the Don and in the Kletskaya area inside the Don river bend. Both areas are bulwarks to the approaches to Stalingrad on the Volga and Astrakhan on the Caspian sea.

Break-Through Opposed.
In the western Caucasus the Soviets said their troops still were fighting in the Taikop-Krasnodar sectors in an effort to prevent a German break-through to the Black sea.

The Russians again referred to the "numerically superior enemy forces" in both the Don river loop and the Mineralnye Vody fighting. The latter appeared still to be the most dangerous German drive of all, for the Nazis were half-way across the Caucasus in the drive to the Caspian sea.

Aside from the reported fighting northwest of Moscow, the Russians also were engaged on the Bryansk front, 220 miles southwest of the Soviet capital. The Red army was said to have crossed a river near Bryansk to dislodge the enemy from several localities.

Violent Nazi Raid.
There was little elaboration in brief dispatches reaching the Soviets in scope and intensity to that in the Caucasus had flared over the northwestern front.

The Soviet information bureau said only that the Red army had been hit by a "populated place" in the general area, but a dispatch to the Communist party newspaper Pravda from that front which winds 500 miles northwest of Moscow to Leningrad said the Germans had attempted a violent 120-plane raid on Leningrad and scattered parachutists around the northern city.

Without giving the date of the attack, Pravda said 30 of the planes were shot down and the parachutists mopped up.

Nazis on Defensive.
(Giving a different version and suggesting Russian, not German, initiative in the general area, a communique from Berlin said German infantry and armored divisions were tied "in a heavy defensive struggle" on both sides of Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow.

(The Rzhev area is the site of some of the strongest German fortifications along the entire eastern front. In last winter's great Soviet counter-offensive, in which the Germans were pushed back generally along the entire battle front, the Red army made little headway in the Rzhev area.)

The Soviet information bureau's midday communique said "our troops continue to press back the enemy" at Voronezh.

But to the south the Germans appeared to be shaping two great new offensives along the Don bend toward Stalingrad on the Volga and in the Caucasus toward Astrakhan where the Volga empties into the Caspian sea.

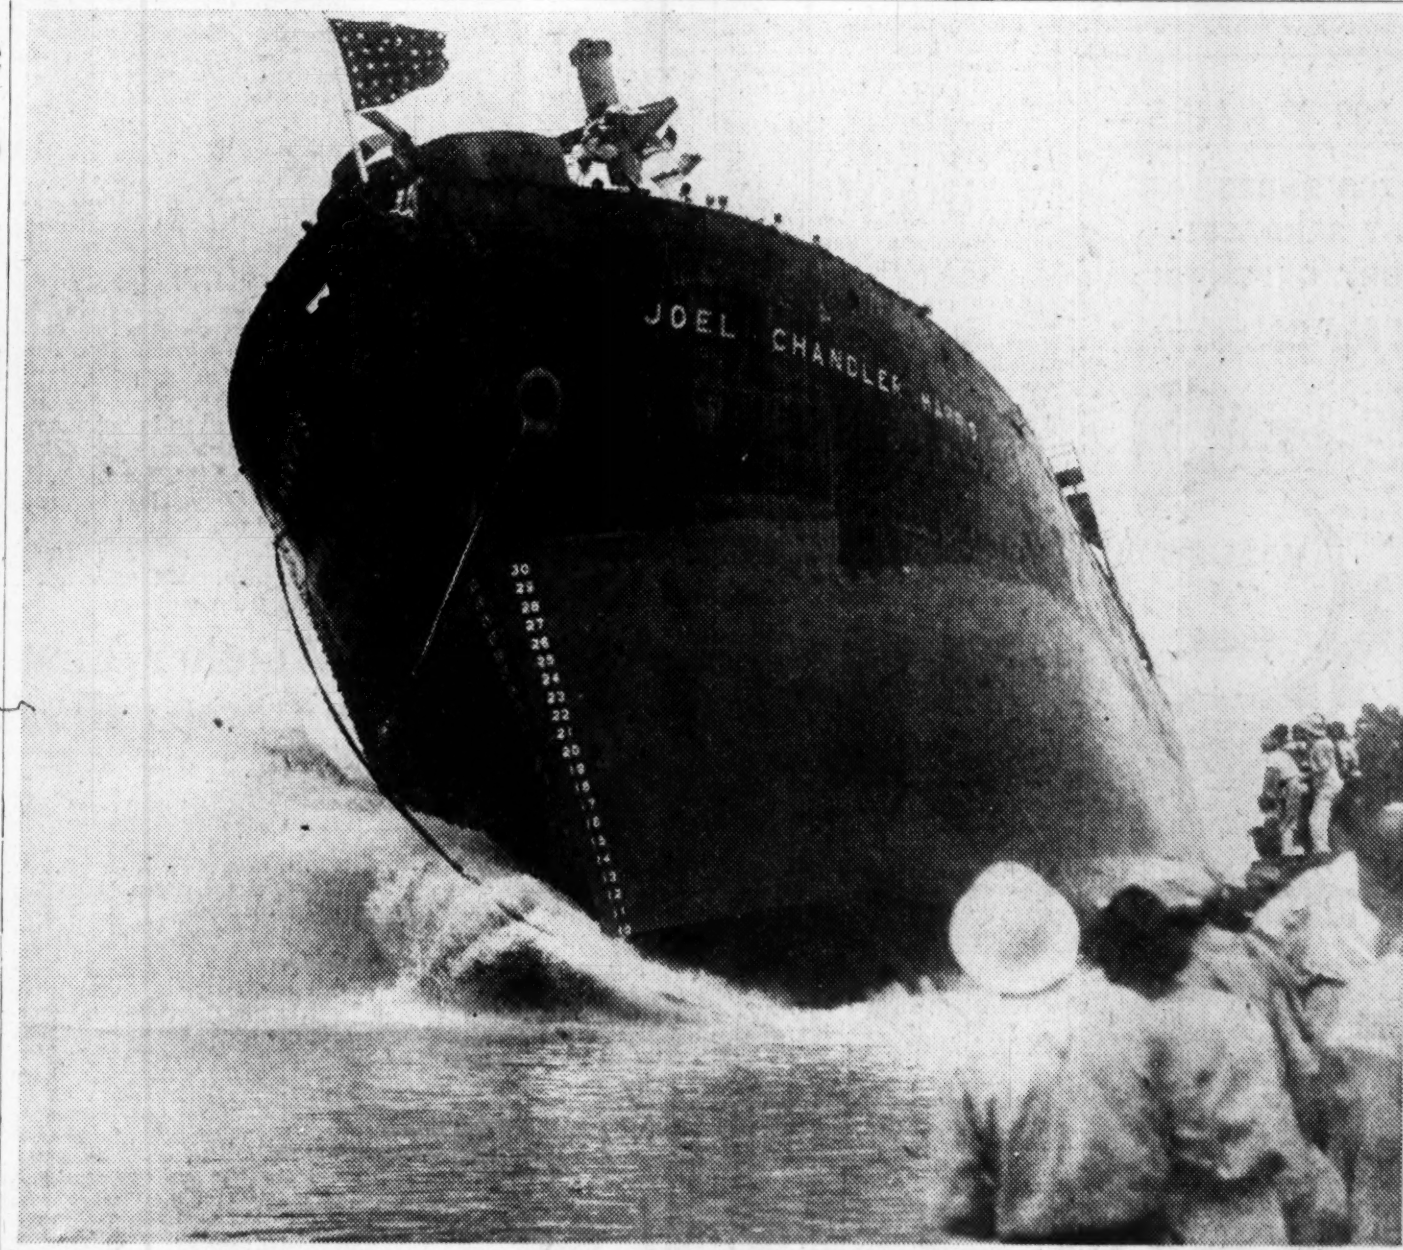

Unprecedented Forces.
At the same time they were fanning out in the northwestern Caucasus from the regions of Maikop and Krasnodar toward the Black Sea naval ports and bases of Novorossiisk and Tuapse.

(The Germans said they had captured Elista, only 150 miles of Astrakhan, in a sudden burst southeastward across the steppes from the Kotelnikovskii area.)

Dispatches from Turkey said the Russian Black Sea fleet, apparently taking refuge from its threatened bases at Novorossiisk and Tuapse, had arrived at Batumi, the terminal of the Black Sea oil line from Baku in the Caucasus.

(An Exchange Telegraph dispatch quoted the Vichy radio as broadcasting German reports that Nazi troops have pierced the first defenses of Stalingrad.)

BELGIAN ZONE DEEPENED.
LONDON, Aug. 13.—(P)—The Germans have deepened their operational zone along the Belgian North Sea coast and persons traveling from other parts of the country to the coastal region must carry special permits, the Belgian News Agency said today.

Talmadge Is Accused Of Selling State Jobs

By LAMAR Q. BALL.

The Talmadge job auction is on, employees at the state capital learned yesterday, where a surge of alarm was disturbing many newcomers to the state pay roll—the beginners in Talmadge politics—who are ignorant of the job sale methods.

State capital employees are being sent back home to work their home counties for Talmadge and when they get there, it was revealed yesterday, many have found their jobs already promised to potential Talmadge supporters back home. They don't understand the whims that control a Talmadge promise. Deep-rooted fear has resulted.

The job sale this year, the present jobholders revealed, has reached hysterical proportions unheard of in past years.

In an effort to induce job-seekers to kick in to the depleted campaign treasury—the big jobs of the state administration have gone on sale—the $5,000-a-year sinecure being put on the auction block at a $3,000 cash starting price.

In this list have been included the jobs of the purchasing agent, the chief of the tag bureau, the state auditor, and even such jobs as...

Dr. L. O. Bricker, Noted Church Founder, Dies
Dr. Luther Otterbren Bricker, 68, noted Atlanta clergyman, author and founder of the Peachtree Christian church here, died early yesterday morning at his Miami Beach home.

Born in Rockingham county, Virginia, Dr. Bricker came to Atlanta in 1910 when he assumed the pastorate of the First Christian church. He served this church until 1924, when he founded the Peachtree Christian church. This church building is recognized the country over as one of the most beautiful Gothic structures in America. It was his influence and will that made it possible, friends said yesterday.

Writing Hymnal.
Dr. Bricker had been at his Florida home since 1935 due to illness. Physicians said he apparently succumbed during his sleep. At the time of his death, he was engaged in the writing of an important church hymnal as his part of a commission on worship being conducted by the Federal Council of Churches in America, of which he was a member. He was author of several books, among which were "The Christian Life," "The Voice in the Deep," "The Windows of Peachtree Church," and "The Altar."

He was regarded by churchmen here as one of the most loyal and one of the most popular members in Atlanta religious circles. He was a charter member of the Atlanta Christian Council. This organization served to bring about unity among the churches, which...

Struck Bayonne Plant Ordered Seized by FDR

BAYONNE, N. J., Aug. 13.—(P) Refusal of 1,000 strikers to return to their jobs at a General Cable Corporation plant in Bayonne brought from President Roosevelt tonight a quick order for the Navy to seize and operate the factory.

Close on his heels came an informal, but enthusiastic, promise by employees to end the walkout that had tied up production of cable essential to Army and Navy contracts.

"We'll go to town for the Navy," said one picket.

The War Labor Board, high union executives and officials of the plant's local had asked the employees in vain to end their three-day strike, called without union sanction. The strikers' reply was an enthusiastic vote to continue the stoppage.

Scheduled for 10 a. m. tomorrow was another meeting of the strikers and some suggested that the employees would march in a body from the meeting to their jobs. A Navy department spokesman said in Washington the Navy would seize the plant tomorrow.

The strike started Monday.

Nazis Challenged Over French Soil

LONDON, Aug. 13.—(P)—American fighter squadrons roaring over the English channel on 31 sorties ended the first 48 hours of great activity by United States Army Air Forces in the European theater today just as 250 to 400 RAF bombers were returning from a second consecutive night of destructive attacks on Mainz in the Rhineland.

The disclosure that all-American fighting squadrons, flying British Spitfire planes, had challenged the German air force over France and the channel came as huge American four-motored bombers were poised on takeoff aprons over the country, likewise ready to participate with the RAF in the aerial destruction of Germany's war foundries and her bases in occupied western Europe.

Such intensified aerial warfare is a necessary forerunner to the opening of a second front in Europe.

The U. S. fighter formations, operating from American-managed airports manned by American ground crews, flew with RAF squadrons on three offensive sweeps into France, conducted 20 sorties over the sea and participated in eight interception missions off the coast of England, between 9 a. m. Monday and 9 a. m. Wednesday, Major General Carl Spaatz announced in a communique.

Spaatz, commander in chief of the United States Army Air Forces in the European theater, had declared, only a few hours before the first flight, that Germany would "feel the might of a thoroughly co-ordinated British-American air force" in the immediate future.

The American fighter squadrons were under the direct command of Brigadier General "Monk" Hunter, who Air Force men say is "put together with chewing gum and wire" as the result of so many...

Secure Footholds On Three Islands Gained by Marines

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(Friday) (INS)—The capture of the Japanese airfield on Guadalcanal island in the Solomons by United States Marines was reported today by the Daily Sketch in a dispatch from Melbourne based on unofficial advice.

The London Daily Express also reported the capture of the Guadalcanal airdrome and asserted that Japanese airfields on the near-by islands of Tulagi and Florida had been destroyed by the attacking Allied forces.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA, Friday, Aug. 14.—Japanese warships and transports apparently intended to reinforce the Solomon island garrisons under attack by American Marines were attacked three times yesterday by Allied bombers "in the New Guinea area," it was announced today.

The communique issued here indicated that the Solomon battle was spreading rapidly in scope now that the American Marines had gained secure footholds on three of the islands 600 miles east of New Guinea, and that what began merely as an important task problem has now widened into a battle of major proportions likely to influence heavily the turn of war on the whole Pacific war scene.

Some Planes Damaged.
Three Japanese fighter planes were shot down and three were damaged in unsuccessful efforts to fend off the Flying Fortresses and other bombers that pounced on the Japanese ships. Results of the Allied daylight attacks could not be determined immediately because of bad weather, the communique said, but all the Allied planes returned, although some were damaged.

In an attack Wednesday on Rabaul, the big Japanese New Britain base northwest of the Solomons, Allied planes had knocked out four Japanese ships in contact.

Germans Claim Attack on Wasp; Not Confirmed

LONDON, Aug. 13.—(P)—Blatant Axis claims of continuing, damaging attacks on a major Allied convoy in the western Mediterranean were branded "inaccurate" by the admiralty tonight and U. S. Naval Headquarters declined to comment on a German assertion that the U. S. carrier Wasp had been set afire by six bomb hits and was trying to reach Malta.

German and Italian claims that two cruisers, a destroyer and 10 steamers had been sunk brought this statement from the admiralty: "Tonight's official announcements (on losses) are inaccurate and no reliance should be placed in them."

An official British report is expected tomorrow.

The Axis claims said damaged ships included a battleship, two carriers and "numerous other steamers and men-of-war," some so seriously that their sinking "may be assumed."

Past Claims False.
None of the Axis claims was confirmed from any other source, and past German and Italian reports of sea triumphs almost invariably have proven grossly exaggerated and inaccurate.

The Rome and Berlin radios asserted that a great chain of ships including three battleships, four carriers, more than 20 steamers, numerous cruisers and several dozen destroyers and smaller craft were in the convoy.

The story of the damage to the 14,700-ton Wasp was broadcast from Berlin, which claimed nine merchantmen of 90,000 tons were sunk. The Germans said damaged ships included the 22,450-ton British carrier Furious, three cruisers and six large freighters and tankers. The Wasp earlier this summer had done yeoman service in the Mediterranean, ferrying fighting planes to besieged Malta.

Italian Cruisers Bombed.
At the opposite end of the Mediterranean at safe distance from the Allied warships, four Italian cruisers were found by huge U. S. bombers in the western Greek port of Pylus. When the bombers turned back toward Egypt or Cyprus, three of the cruisers had been damaged seriously. Explosions were heard from two and black smoke billows from the third. The fourth apparently escaped.

The convoy action, if indeed it was such, apparently included a side-issue attack on a French air liner on the Marseille-Algiers run. When the plane reached Africa it was riddled with bullets and had one dead and seven seriously wounded passengers aboard. It had been attacked by a British fighter plane, Vichy France said, near the western Mediterranean convoy battle.

The Vichy radio broadcast that a British carrier of the Glorious class and four destroyers entered Gibraltar during the day. Berlin broadcast a Madrid dispatch saying the British destroyer Wrestler had been sunk from the convoy.

OPA To Revive Question of Gas For Salesmen

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Officials of the OPA today promised to reconsider the whole question of gasoline rationing to traveling salesmen and representatives of distributing houses with a view to arriving at a possible new basis of gasoline allotment.

The promise was gained by Representative Ramspeck and a delegation of Atlanta traveling salesmen during a conference with Leon Henderson, director of the Office of Price Administration.

Priority to the Henderson conference, Representative Ramspeck and the Atlanta group conferred with a number of other government officials concerned with gasoline rationing, including two Georgia senators—Walter F. George and Richard B. Russell.

The point was made in arguments to OPA heads that it was unfair to Georgia traveling salesmen to hold them to the same gasoline rationing as that given to more populous states. In Massachusetts, for example, it was pointed out that the density of population is 500 to the mile, compared with only 50 in Georgia, enabling salesmen there to cover 10 times as much territory on the same amount of fuel.

Those joining in the conferences with Ramspeck included T. N. Jones, chairman of the Atlanta delegation; Tom Hodges, of the Wofford Oil Company; G. C. Robey, Charlie Brown, member of the Fulton county commission; Cecil Floyd, representing the City Salesmen's Association, and Guy Blalock, representing manufacturing distributors.

Georgia Baptist Aide Arrives

Miss Helen R. Gonser, R. N., A. B., arrived in Atlanta Wednesday to look over the work at the Georgia Baptist Hospital School of Nurses, where she will become director of education in September. Eighteen out of the 39 members of the 1942 graduating class now are in the Army, many doing foreign service, and the 1942 enrollment for the three-year course has increased by 35 students over last year's classes, due to the need for nurses in the Army and Navy.

Miss Gonser was previously connected with the University of Chicago Clinics and the New Wesley hospital in Chicago.

Stimson Orders Shake-Up in Army Publicity Staff

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Secretary of War Stimson, obviously angered at the "Fifth Column air-marker" story, today announced a thorough shake-up of the Army's publicity staff, which, he said, would make another such incident impossible.

The reorganization, he told reporters, had been ordered into effect even before Army press relations officers at Mitchell Field released a story, with pictures, of huge arrows and other direction markers on the ground pointing to airports and defense plants.

One was an arrow-shaped clearing in a wood, which was later found to have been a bird sanctuary owned by the state of New Jersey. Another was an arrangement of sacks in the shape of a figure nine, with the tail, it was said, pointing to an airport. Investigation disclosed that a farmer on the eastern shore of Virginia had tossed fertilizer bags from a moving truck to dry them in the sun. Lieutenant General Hugh A. Drum announced yesterday the supposed "markers" were without "hostile motive."

Stimson disclosed he had asked Major General Alexander D. Surles, chief of army publicity, to undertake the reorganization. One result, he added, was that 75 of 100 public relations officers who are in Washington, but not with the Army's regular Bureau of Public Relations, would be reassigned, if possible, to duty with troops.

The overall size of the Army's publicity staff will be reduced, he added. Each major branch of the Army will have a representative in Surles' office here. The authority of public relations offices outside Washington to issue news releases will be greatly narrowed.

"The general policy which both the Army's regular Bureau of Public Relations and I have in regard to the public relations of the Army is an ideal based on accuracy, which we regard as a fundamental necessity," Stimson said. "This is a people's war, and our public relations must provide the people with facts which will keep them informed."

NO "BED" OF ROSES—Travel on this train isn't as luxurious as it looks. Those comfortable cots are for sick and injured soldiers. This coach is one of the five on the Army's new hospital train, the first of its kind in the United States in this war. Leaving from Camp Rucker, Ala., it stopped in Atlanta early yesterday morning. The soldiers aboard this car are enlisted men, but they're not sick or hurt. They are part of the train personnel.

City Chalks Up Another First As Hospital Train Stops Here

By LEE FUHRMAN.

Atlanta chalked up another first yesterday. At exactly 4:40 o'clock in the morning, a train five cars in length, drawn by a powerful locomotive of the Central of Georgia railroad, puffed its way into Terminal station.

This was no ordinary train. It was the first hospital train of the Army to be activated in this war, and Atlanta was the first stop in the train's journey from Camp Rucker, Ala.

The train brought to this city 25 patients—including one woman—who were transferred to ambulances and taken from the station to the Army's Lawson General hospital.

A dozen ambulances waited on the platform, with complements of white-coated men of the medical corps. The ambulances were strung out in a line, and when the train came into the station, the Army went into action with its customary precision and dispatch.

Red Crosses.
The cars of the train, with large red crosses painted on their sides, as well as the words "Medical Department, Hospital Ward, Car No. So-and-So," slid to a halt and the men of the medical corps did their stuff.

Some of the patients walked to the ambulances unaided. Others were helped. The rest were carefully lifted into stretchers and moved from the car to the ambulances. But all were on their way to the hospital here within the space of a few minutes.

When the train halted, one of the first men off was its commander, Major Robert L. Gilliam, whose Atlanta address is 220 Fourteenth street, and who formerly attended Emory University.

Major Gilliam was met by his wife and children, Mary Lois, 8, and Robert L. Gilliam III, four years old. After affectionate greetings with his family, Major Gilliam went about the task of supervising removal of the patients.

This accomplished, he spoke proudly of this first hospital train.

32-Patient Car.
"Each ward car contains beds for 32 patients," he said. "We carried a total of 50 patients. That is, six officers, six nurses, 32 enlisted men and a cadre of six. Everything rolled along fine—except that the engine ran out of water near Columbus, Ga., and then couldn't get up steam to move off again."

"So we had to wait for another locomotive. The water made us late. We were due in Atlanta about 10 o'clock Wednesday night."

Explaining details of the interior of the train, Major Gilliam continued: "We have a fully equipped kitchen that can feed 400 persons cafeteria style. We also have a completely equipped operating room that can handle general emergency and general surgery."

Everything inside the train was spick and span, clean as the pro-

House Passes Bill Speeding Up Pay to Military Dependents

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Over War Department opposition, the house passed and sent to a less-receptive senate today legislation empowering the Army and Navy to make benefit payments available immediately to dependents of the nation's service men.

The original allowance and allotment act passed last June provided that payments to dependents start accruing as of June 1, but that actual delivery of checks be withheld until November 1 to allow time to set up administrative machinery.

The withholding provision, complained Representative Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi, sponsor of the legislation passed today, was causing hardships in many needy cases. Rankin's amendment simply made it permissible, not mandatory, for the departments to send out checks immediately.

None of the less than 30 house members present objected to the bill, but Representative Eberhart, Democrat, Pennsylvania, who had blocked its consideration last week, served notice that unless checks were distributed at least three or four weeks before the November elections, he would press for another amendment to require them to be withheld until November 4, the day after election.

Eberhart previously had commented that delivery of the checks on November 1 might lay congress open to the charge of "playing politics," by having dependents receive their money two days before the congressional elections.

There was no opposition from Acting Majority Leader Cochran, Democrat, Missouri, who, earlier this week, made public a letter from Undersecretary of War Patterson expressing the department's opposition to the Rankin bill and the opinion that November 1 was the earliest practicable date checks could be sent out. Cochran said the Navy Department favored the legislation.

Chairman May, Democrat, Kentucky, of the Military Affairs Committee, likewise did not oppose the bill, saying he had come all the way from Kentucky to help get it passed. May said he was aware of high War Department opposition.

Immediate senate action on the bill was blocked by a threat of opponents to force a quorum call, when there obviously was no quorum present. At the suggestion of Majority Leader Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, the senate deferred further consideration until Monday after first approving the measure by a 7-to-5 vote.

Stephan Seeks Plea to Court of Appeals.
CINCINNATI, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Max Stephan, Detroit restaurant owner convicted of treason, asked the U. S. circuit court of appeals today to save him from the hangman's noose.

Court officials said they understood that Stephan's counsel would ask the appellate judges to hear the case at the opening session October 5 to permit presentation of arguments before the November 13 execution date.

Stephan was convicted of speeding the flight of Oberleutnant Hans Peter Krug from a Canadian prison camp. Krug was captured in San Antonio, Texas, and testified, as a government witness against Stephan, that he reached the United States by paddling a stolen rowboat across the Detroit river with a board.

Stephan cited 14 grounds in his appeal from U. S. district court conviction. He contended that the prosecution failed to have two competent witnesses to the alleged act of treason; that the indictment did not specifically charge him with adhering to and giving aid to the enemy, but to an individual; and that the judge and jury went beyond the indictment in reaching a verdict and sentencing him.

Mayor Decries Spread of Race Trouble Rumor

'Irresponsible Agitators' Are Helping Hitler, Says Hartsfield.

Continued peaceful race relations cannot be guaranteed if irresponsible agitators are allowed to continue their work, Mayor Hartsfield yesterday said in a statement assuring the "people of Atlanta that there is at present no race trouble in Atlanta and neighboring cities as has been reported."

The mayor also pointed out that the federal laws against spreading of rumors, adding: "It is a poor way to back our boys at the front and Hitler would like nothing better."

His statement follows: "For the past week, all sorts of wild rumors have been brought to this office about race trouble in Atlanta and neighboring cities."

"So far as we have been able to ascertain, there is not the slightest ground for these rumors, either as to Atlanta or neighboring cities."

"I would like to remind those who start these rumors that there are federal war-time laws covering the spreading of rumors intended to excite or upset the morale of the people during the war effort. It is a poor way to back up our boys at the front and Hitler would like nothing better."

"I can assure the people of Atlanta that there is at present no race trouble in Atlanta, and so far as we can ascertain, none in neighboring cities, but nobody can guarantee peaceful race relations if irresponsible agitators are allowed to continue their work."

"Let us remember that it was the circulation of wild rumors which contributed to the downfall of France and that this is a part of the technique of sabotage and Fifth Column work."

"I think the time has come when level-headed citizens should aid us in putting a stop to these wild tales."

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Mayor Decries Spread of Race Trouble Rumor

'Irresponsible Agitators' Are Helping Hitler, Says Hartsfield.

Continued peaceful race relations cannot be guaranteed if irresponsible agitators are allowed to continue their work, Mayor Hartsfield yesterday said in a statement assuring the "people of Atlanta that there is at present no race trouble in Atlanta and neighboring cities as has been reported."

The mayor also pointed out that the federal laws against spreading of rumors, adding: "It is a poor way to back our boys at the front and Hitler would like nothing better."

His statement follows: "For the past week, all sorts of wild rumors have been brought to this office about race trouble in Atlanta and neighboring cities."

"So far as we have been able to ascertain, there is not the slightest ground for these rumors, either as to Atlanta or neighboring cities."

"I would like to remind those who start these rumors that there are federal war-time laws covering the spreading of rumors intended to excite or upset the morale of the people during the war effort. It is a poor way to back up our boys at the front and Hitler would like nothing better."

"I can assure the people of Atlanta that there is at present no race trouble in Atlanta, and so far as we can ascertain, none in neighboring cities, but nobody can guarantee peaceful race relations if irresponsible agitators are allowed to continue their work."

"Let us remember that it was the circulation of wild rumors which contributed to the downfall of France and that this is a part of the technique of sabotage and Fifth Column work."

"I think the time has come when level-headed citizens should aid us in putting a stop to these wild tales."

Excess Profits Tax Would Ruin Boeing Firm, Says Official

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—An airplane manufacturing official testified today that unless excess profits tax provisions were lightened the proposed new revenue bill "probably would end the existence" of the Boeing Aircraft Corporation, which developed the Army's "Flying Fortress" bombers.

Civil Disorders Are Reported Ebbing in India

Nehru's Sister Taken Into Custody, Reuters Agency Says.

BOMBAY, Aug. 13.—(AP)—India's civil disorders apparently were subsiding tonight with armed police and troops in watchful control of the main trouble centers of the weeks' earlier outbursts against British rule in a campaign which Mohandas K. Gandhi had pledged to nonviolence.

The India office announced in London that reports which it had received were "encouraging," and said conditions in Bombay and Old Delhi, where police fired into rioting crowds three times yesterday, were "much nearer normal."

(From some provinces including Bengal, the Punjab and Madras, the Indian office statement said, "only very few isolated incidents were reported." The general impression is that for the time being at least, special precautions are still necessary.)

Political Banners Must Come Down

City council's public works committee yesterday ordered down political banners strung across Forsyth street, pointing out such emblems have been banned in Atlanta for the past 15 years.

The matter came up when supporters of Governor Talmadge sought to have banners strung adjoining an Arnall-for-Governor sign in front of the Ansley hotel.

Taxis Engaging In Vice Traffic To Get No Tires

Richmond Board To Aid Drive on Venereal Diseases.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Richmond county rationing officials announced they would deny tire applications to taxicab companies whose cabs are found participating in vice traffic in this military training center.

The action by the rationing board followed a meeting earlier in the week of the Committee for Social Protection which heard charges that taxis are one of the biggest obstacles in a drive against prostitution.

Army authorities reported taxis are being used by prostitutes for their trade. For a price, soldiers may hire a cab, a woman picked up by the driver and the couple taken to some out-of-the-way spot.

Military officials reported a substantial increase in the venereal disease rate at the two Army posts here during the last month.

Taxicabs are now eligible for re-capped tires, ration board officials said, but each local board is given wide latitude in decisions.

The rationing board said it probably would summon the owner of a taxicab firm the first time one of its drivers is apprehended taking part in this traffic and advise him that the next time the company will be permanently restrained from getting additional tires.

Talmadge Job Auction Is On, Writer Reveals

bernatorial appointments as the office of the state revenue commissioner, now held by Jack Forrester, Talmadge's outstanding aide of 1942.

State highway board jobs are being offered at a top price of $3,000 gifts to the campaign coffers and the smaller jobs on the highway pay roll are being offered at proportionately smaller figures. More than 500 new employees have been added to the various state departments in the last two months, it was declared yesterday.

Old-age pension applicants, neglected for the last two years, are being invited down to the State Capitol Office building, Room 238, "where Mrs. Holmes has been employed by the Governor to investigate all claims." The Governor, the old men and women are told, is anxious to have everyone taken care of who is entitled to a pension.

The Welfare Department, which

JAP-HELD VILLAGE—This is how the village of Attu in the Aleutian Islands looked before the Japanese landed there, and how it looks when the fog doesn't shroud the community and the mountains beyond from U. S. bombers.

has been cringing whenever pension applicants darkened the threshold, is now embracing all applicants—"we're delighted to see anyone who is eligible to get his pension."

As the stories of the job sales swept the corridors of all the state office buildings, C. H. (Hugh) Parker, of Macon, stepped forward with a story of his unhappy experience with a Talmadge campaign promise in the last election.

Parker charged that he had delegated to beat the bushes in Bibb county to win supporters for Talmadge. He was authorized, he said, to offer state jobs to those who helped him.

"When I visited Atlanta after Talmadge was inaugurated," he said, "I was referred by the Governor to Herman Talmadge."

"Herman got out of his chair, waved his hand and said:

"The election is over—forget about them."

"I looked at Herman Talmadge and said:

"This is a hell of a note."

"And walked out of his office."

Parker produced a letter signed by Herman Talmadge on January 23, 1941, in which the Governor's son said:

"You asked me what we could do with people who want jobs that we couldn't give one to. My answer, if I remember correctly, was 'just forget it.' If you don't have a job for a person, there is nothing you can do about it."

In a letter to Herman, Parker had said:

"Herman, I am sorry that I disturbed you, but I considered the courtesy that I was treated with today very bad judgment on your part, and I'm going to tell you this, we countrymen may be pretty ignorant, but we do know what is going on in the appointments. . . . You won't be bothered with me any time soon."

Perry Monroe Hawkins, of 781 North avenue, was one of those in line looking for the old-age pension he has been denied heretofore.

"I put in my application two years ago," said 68-year-old Mr. Hawkins. "I hadn't heard a word from it. They tell me now that if I see Mrs. Holmes, up in this (the state office) building, I'll get fixed up."

With Mr. Hawkins, was Mrs. Mary Lawrence, of the same address, who was looking for an increase in her pension.

"Sure, I'm going to vote for Governor Talmadge," she said. "They tell me that other man—Arnall—is going to wipe out the state pensions less than two years after he's in office."

(One of Arnall's campaign pledges is to see that all old age pensions will be paid—as they have not been heretofore.)

"With the jobs that are being handed out and the jobs that are being promised," said a Capitol official, "that alleged $10,000,000 surplus won't last until October."

The Talmadge job promise trick is an old one, the veterans on the civil service rolls said.

"The Palace Guard promises anyone a job—and gives it to him—but the job only lasts until after the election. Then—the economy wave sets in—the election is over. Talmadge is luring hundreds of voters into his camp and getting them to work for him with promises of jobs that they think will last forever—but, really, they are jobs that will last until just a few days after the election."

The auction of the big jobs for sizeable campaign contributions reached proportions, it was said, where one man refused to pay $3,000 cash for the promise of a $5,000-a-year job.

"I'll give you $500," he is reported to have said.

"Why," he was told, "we have three men ready to pay $3,800, but we really want you in there."

"What about . . . (the man who's holding the job today)?"

"Oh, we're moving him after the election."

The matter is still under debate. The big jobholders, it is said, have no fears of being removed. But the minor jobholders, who are being called on for contributions and who are being ordered to go back to work for Talmadge are the ones who are quaking in their boots today.

REA Power, Light Construction Halted By WPB Order

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The Rural Electrification Administration's construction program came to a full stop today with a War Production Board order halting all building of power and light projects unless specifically authorized by WPB.

The armed services' growing need for copper and steel was given as the reason for the order.

The REA has 15 partly completed projects in farm areas which are immediately affected.

Projects of private utility firms already were virtually at a standstill because of earlier restrictions on the use of critical or strategic materials in the construction of plants and power lines.

However, construction may go ahead on new projects if they are specifically authorized by WPB as being essential to the war program or civilian requirements. None of the REA projects was included in this group.

Action of the board came in the form of an amendment to a previous curtailment order. In March the board granted permission to REA to complete any projects 40 per cent finished December 5, 1941. Twenty such projects have been completed, leaving 15 to stop now.

The order's effect on the REA personnel was not immediately learned. The Senate Committee on Reorganizing Government Establishments for War, headed by Senator Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, named REA as one of the agencies from which employees could be transferred to other offices concerned with the war effort. The committee said REA was "utilizing sorely needed engineers to develop electrical appliances that cannot and will not be manufactured for the duration of the war."

It was said that REA Administrator Harry Slattery anticipated today's action and issued instructions July 20 to REA borrowers to halt construction on uncompleted projects.

Safari Drama Bared In U. S. Fliers' Diary After Jungle Crash

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(INS)—A remarkable eyewitness diary of the dramatic experiences of 10 United States Army men stranded for days in a Latin-American jungle after their B-24 bomber negotiated a forced landing was made public for the first time today in the current issue of Yank, official Army newspaper.

During their struggle for survival in a seemingly endless wilderness, the men nonchalantly played poker with 45 calibre bullets for chips; they ran out of food and shot fish and ducks as they paddled along a strange stream on two rubber life rafts; and one of the men made most of the journey with one arm paralyzed as a result of an encounter with an electric eel.

The 10 Army men, who were en route to a "faraway fighting front" when their bomber got caught in a storm "somewhere in the Caribbean" July 13 are:

Second Lieutenant Felix W. Kershner, 24, of Enid, Okla., pilot of the plane; Second Lieutenant Wilfred L. Grenfell, 26, of McMinnville, Ore., co-pilot; Second Lieutenant Richard H. Turner, 27, of DuBois, Iowa, navigator; Second Lieutenant Eugene G. Anderson, 21, of Hatton, N. D., bombardier; Private Morris Pennington, 28, of Tacoma, Wash., tail gunner; Private Jesse H. Lewis, 22, of Antioch, Texas, radio operator; Private Frank Janeshek, 29, of Follansbee, W. Va., assistant radio operator; Private Milton Hazel, 26, of Sauquoit, Mich., chief engineer; Private Robert Ravey, 28, of Pasadena, Cal., aerial engineer; and Sergeant Ed Cunningham, of Burlington, N. J., staff writer for Yank, who kept the diary of their experiences.

Summary of Diary.

Here is a day-by-day summary of the diary kept by Sergeant Cunningham after the giant B-24 bomber made an abrupt "belly-flop" in a small clearing in the middle of the jungle without injuring any of the 10 men and with only slight damage to the plane itself.

July 13—Half an hour later it was dark. We sent up flares, but we heard no planes. We had dinner—corned beef, baked beans and a box of "dog biscuits." Everybody was happy. We were in a hell of a spot, but we were all alive. That night we slept in the plane.

July 14—All of us are awake before dawn... we prowled around in the jungle. There is no game around here, nor any stream near by. Our supply of canned goods and rations is limited... That night we played poker. 45 calibre bullets make good chips. To bed about 10 p. m.

July 15—We have decided to take a chance on slashing our way through the jungle and get our things ready for the long trek... We haul out the rubber life rafts. Dinner tonight—we shoot the works on the canned stuff. Too heavy to carry with us, except in our stomachs.

July 16—Our safari starts at 8 a. m. . . . pushing through the Air Transport Group Elects New Officers

C. E. Woolman Named Vice President, Rick- enbacker Director.

C. E. Woolman, of Atlanta, vice president and general manager of Delta Air Lines, was elected vice president of the Air Transport Association of America at its annual meeting and Eddie Rickenbacker, of New York City, president of Eastern Air Lines, was named a director, it was announced yesterday.

Edgar S. Gorrell, of Washington and Chicago, was re-elected president. Also elected to serve another term was Fowler Barker, of Washington, secretary and treasurer. Other directors were: Jack Frye and J. W. Miller, of Kansas City, Mo.; G. T. Baker, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Croil Hunter, of St. Paul, Minn.; W. A. Patterson, of Chicago, and O. M. Mosier, of New York City.

The main purpose of the meeting, which took place in Washington, was to work out plans for collaborating with the Air Transport Command of the United States Air Force, officers said.

Jungle is like untangling yourself from a steel fishnet. We reach a stream about 11 a. m. (It was here that Private Pennington spotted the electric eel, slashed its head with his machete and got his arm paralyzed by the shock)... Just before dusk we find a creek. And an abandoned leaf-roofed hut... We stop for the night.

They Shoot Fish.

July 17—Down to one meal a day... Evidently, still miles from where we can float the life rafts... We try to catch fish, but the fish won't go for our bait, flies and big ants... So we take the rifle and shoot fish. Over a fire, they're cooked well.

July 18—Finally we reach corduroy trail. It leads to a stream. Now the water is deep enough to launch our rafts... About 2 p. m. we meet a native and his wife paddling a homemade canoe. They are not very social and paddle away... We break through the bullrushes into a clearing, where we camp for the night.

July 19—The stream widens. We pass a few scattered huts... We try to buy ducks, but when the native woman sees us she scampers off into the jungle... Lieutenant Anderson shoots ducks. We leave two American dollars in payment. Dinner—roast duck, oranges (found growing in the jungle).

July 20—We paddle all day. Late in the afternoon we stop at a native hut and buy two chickens... July 21—Paddling from dawn to dusk... (Then) we paddle in utter darkness. Private Ravey sings out, yelling about a steamboat around the bend. We shout, but the noise of water and the steamboat's motors drown our voices. We search for a flashlight. It's lost. Private Lewis has an inspiration. He pulls out his cigarette lighter. It works... Like a beacon in the dark jungle. We are picked up by a boat that makes the run only once a month.

July 22—It's all over but the shouting now. We shave our 10-day growth of beard... July 23—We see the light of a town... July 24—We arrive at a United States Army Air Force base.

You May Expect Same Amount Of Sugar In 1st 9 Months of '43

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(P)—Consumers may expect at least as much sugar in the first nine months of 1943 as the present basic rations, OPA said today, "provided the shipping outlook does not take a radical turn for the worse."

The basic ration for household consumers is eight ounces a week, and 70 per cent of 1941 use for industrial users.

Ration allowances for the remainder of the year, the Office of Price Administration said, are being gauged to provide a supply of at least 2,300,000 tons of sugar January 1, 1943.

Harold B. Rowe, chief of the OPA food rationing division, under whose direction the report was prepared, said that if the shipping situation "turns out to be better than we now have the right to expect, or if the distribution is less than expected," any excess supply of sugar can be distributed as a bonus, or extra allowance to consumers.

Rowe estimated that in order to maintain the minimum ration through the first nine months of 1943 the distribution of 4,173,000 tons of sugar would be required, but that an additional 830,000 tons must be kept in the nation's sugar larder to insure an adequate supply in all sections of the country.

Sale of 'Tap' Bonds Closes Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(P)—The current treasury sale of "tap" bonds will close Saturday night.

The treasury has been filling subscriptions for these bonds which are 2½ per cent 20 to 25 year security, since the morning of August 3, when it was announced that the sale would continue for an indefinite period. Sales have exceeded $1,000,000,000.

Unlike other securities which are sold only in specific amounts, the tap bonds are sold in whatever amount requested by eligible purchasers prior to the closing date.

Strauss Jr., regional OPA administrator. Smith will meet with Atlanta and Fulton county real estate operators at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce.

GROUND FOR THE DURATION—Bozo, the "canine clipper" of Lowry Field, Col., feels he has truly gone to the bow-wow now, as he listens to Sergeant F. M. White read the orders from headquarters that end their 11-year flying partnership. The dog's been grounded.

11-Year Partnership Ended As 'Flying Bozo' Is Grounded

There'll be no peace in dogdom for the duration! Bozo, who's been flying with Technical Sergeant F. M. White for 11 years, has been, of all things, grounded at Lowry Field, Colorado.

It happened last week. Bozo was ousted from the cockpit by official orders from headquarters stating "to conserve all available space, only essential personnel will be allowed to fly until further notice."

Sure it hurt—why? Bozo had flown for 11 years, taking in any number of U. S. fields, as well as a jaunt to Panama, and had never been scratched (any scars on his muzzle are strictly terra firma relics of weekend brawls—but you should have seen the other guys, those civilian dogs!) But with true air force gallantry, Bozo relinquished his place with scarcely a snarl.

You might think an aerial-minded dog like Bozo would be a sky-terrier, or at least an air-dale, but he's just plain Yankee pit bulldog who's the friend of air-men from coast to coast.

Yessir, he's a mighty famous character, and orders or no orders, you just can't take that away from a high-flyin' canine like Bozo.

MEN IN PANAMA WANT MORE LETTERS

From three naval men stationed in Balboa, Canal Zone, comes a letter requesting letters, "since our only pastime here is correspondence." They state that since being on detached duty they haven't received a daily newspaper and would like to know something of current events. "What is this U. S. O. organization? Is it something new?" One of the seamen, A. J. Hobbs, is a former Atlantan. The other two "foreign" service men who seem to be forgotten are D. U. Jeffries and D. Y. Beabout. Their address, Box X997, 15th Naval District, Balboa, Canal Zone.

ATLANTANS LEAVING TO BE MECHANICS

Three Atlantans recently have enrolled in the mechanics classes of Pan American Air Berries at Miami which are designed to convert regular mechanics not already engaged in war work into aircraft specialists. Taking the eight-week training course are: Alvin P. Adams Jr., of Washington avenue; Joseph W. Caldwell, of 216 Lee street; and James B. Wilbanks, of Bedford place.

ATLANTANS GRADUATE AT CHANUTE FIELD

Recent graduates from the Army Air Forces Technical Training Command school at Chanutte Field, Ill., include seven men from the Atlanta area. From Atlanta are: Robert J. Coker, son of Mrs. T. D. Coker, of 363 Martin street; and George W. Greene, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Greene, of Route 7. Also graduated were William P. Cochran, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Cochran, of Dallas, Ga.; Ernest L. Boyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Boyd, of Forest Park; Chester L. Gunnin, son of Mrs. A. H. Gunnin, of East Point; William E. Chatham, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Chatham, of Douglasville; and Emmitt E. Brantley, son of William J. Brantley, of Chamblee.

MAJOR MARSHALL CALLED TO SERVICE

Major William F. Marshall, commissioned as a reserve officer since the first World War, was called into active service July 30 and is now stationed at Daniel Field, Augusta, where he is commanding officer of the Replacement Control Depot.

Serving as a captain in the infantry in World War I, Major Marshall was in six major engagements in France and wears six battle clasps on his victory medal. He was wounded in action twice, and received the Order of the Purple Heart decoration.

FORMER ATLANTAN REPORTED MISSING

Stationed in the Philippines since November, 1941, Joe H. Sikes, former Atlantan, was reported last week as missing in action since May 7. The son of Ernest Sikes, of Franklin, Ga., Sikes, who was 24, lived in Atlanta with his aunt, Mrs. J. B. Peavy, for 10 years before his enlistment six years ago. During his years of Army service, Sikes spent two years in Panama, and joined the Air Corps in 1940. He had just dall P. Edwards, of 807 Penn avenue; Second Lieutenant John L. Wilson, of 717 Paces Ferry road; Captain Royal B. Prim, of 2179 McKinley road; Second Lieutenant Lester S. Burke Jr., of 2914 Lee road; and Second Lieutenant John V. Adams, of 87 Sheridan drive; and Second Lieutenant George D. Council Urges Revocation of 3 Hotel Permits

Mahs' Resignation Accepted; Audit of Charity Club Asked.

City council last night continued its war on alleged vice, recommending revocation of three permits to operate for three small hotels, ordered an audit of Christmas Charity Club, organization of the police department, and accepted the resignation of Supernumerary Patrolman A. J. Mahs.

City council will pass Monday on the recommendations that permits of the Georgian, Oxford and Hudson hotels be revoked.

About 80 per cent of the 325 members of the police department belong to the Christmas Charity Club, which distributes Christmas baskets to see that Santa Claus visits widows and orphans of policemen and retired policemen.

Members contribute 25 cents a month to the club, and other funds are provided by staging fish fries and entertainments.

A petition signed by 160 members of the department cited that an audit has not been made in recent years, and asked the police committee to order one. Doc Sims is president of the organization and Lieutenant C. E. McCrary is secretary.

Mahs was charged with drinking and with failure to return to the department a pistol issued to him by the department. When he offered his resignation saying he proposed to join the Army, the charges were dropped. He, however, is under indictment by the grand jury for larceny after trust in failing to produce the pistol.

During the trial on the Hudson hotel case, Councilman Frank Wilson, presiding as chairman of the police committee, threatened to banish William Thomas, defense attorney, from the hearing after a heated exchange between Wilson and Thomas. The argument subsided, and Thomas continued in the case.

A request by Patrolman Emory

Waldrop that he be granted an extended leave of absence to continue work in a private job was denied.

Two More Stalwarts

Quit Talmadge Forces

Two more members of the Governor's staff have pledged their support to Ellis Arnall in the coming election. They are T. Elton

Drake, Atlanta lawyer and partner of Herman Talmadge, son of Governor Talmadge, and Dr. W. A. Johnson, of Elberton, active in politics in Elbert county and former Talmadge leader there.

It became known at the capitol yesterday Governor Talmadge had received the resignation of Drake as a lieutenant colonel on his staff two days ago, but had made no announcement of it.

Newspapers in Wartime

The part which a free press plays in wartime was splendidly analyzed in a recent speech by David E. Lillenthal, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, delivered before the North Carolina Press Association.

"A newspaper," said Mr. Lillenthal, "makes no munitions, fires no guns, flies no fighting planes. And yet so mighty a weapon is the press that if we were a country without newspapers we could not win this war. For ideas are more explosive than TNT. And no offensive tactic is strong unless behind it there is a flaming public will, set afire by understanding and public knowledge."

The fact that one of the first acts of dictators is to deny all freedom of the press, to use newspapers merely as a propaganda machine of war, is sufficient proof of the importance of a free press to those nations which base their fight upon truth.

In all the world, ambitious demagogues who would don the robe of dictatorship, begin by seeking to impugn the newspapers. "Them lily newspapers" is the universal cry of all who would seize for themselves unholy power.

In a democracy at war, Mr. Lillenthal pointed out, the press has four vital functions: To report, to criticize, to clarify and to unify.

The duty of the press to report is, of course, limited by the restriction against publication of military information which would aid the enemy. Yet it is reasonably easy to define such military facts and, aside from this one limitation, newspapers should report as freely as in times of peace.

That the second function of the press, to criticize, is even more important in the tension of war than in times of peace, is self-evident. For more depends upon the constant submission of public figures to the light of public knowledge of their acts.

"There is no sacred class in America," asserted Mr. Lillenthal, "that should be exempt from public criticism. There is no one, public officer or private citizen, no matter how powerful or apparently well entrenched, who can ignore and defy public opinion where he has been caught off base."

Referring to his own experiences with the press, as head of the TVA, Mr. Lillenthal said that while some of the newspaper criticism of the conduct of the TVA was far from factual, much of it "was good for me and good for the TVA" and none of it did any permanent harm.

All of it, he added, served to remind of the truth that every public officer should daily repeat: "For today I wield some of the powers of the state—but I must never for a moment think that I am that power. As a public official, I am in the service of the public and to that public I am in everything responsible and accountable."

And it is through the clear window of a free and untrammelled press that the public keeps watch upon its servants, the public officers it has elected and whom it can likewise remove.

No Small Item

Some conception of the magnitude of the task of producing the Mars flying boat on a mass-production basis may be gained from statistics printed in the Martin Star, magazine of the Glenn L. Martin Company at Baltimore, Md.

The two-decked ship has a 200-foot wingspan and an overall length of 117 feet. It can fly to Europe and back non-stop. She is 36 feet high and has a beam, or width, of 13 feet six inches. It takes four 2,000-horsepower engines to take her off and going, the 17-foot six-inch propellers carrying her 140,000 pounds of maximum normal weight.

The Mars has enough space to enclose a 14-room house. Seven and a half miles of wiring and one and nine-tenths miles of tubing go into her construction.

So it is not reasonable to expect they will be rolling off the line like automobiles at any time in the near future.

"Hands Off" in India

United States Army forces in India face a delicate duty in remaining entirely aloof from the trouble which has developed between the native population and the British authorities.

Orders have gone out that all Americans in India must avoid scrupulously any participation in the internal troubles there. Only in event their own personal safety or that of other Americans is endangered may they resort to purely defensive measures, the orders read.

Such orders are self-evidently wise and correct. The trouble in India is none of our making, it is not our affair and we cannot be involved in any way. Our troops are there solely as part of the grand strategy of world-wide war. Their objective is primarily to aid China and their sole enemies are the forces of the Axis powers.

Latest reports indicate that the riots which have brought bloodshed in some Indian cities show signs of abating. Meanwhile Gandhi, the witting or unwitting Indian agent for the Axis powers, remains in confinement. It is to be hoped the trouble is largely over and that the Indian population, realizing the menace of Axis domination which threatens, will join wholeheartedly with the United Nations' forces in fighting the joint foe.

Britain, undoubtedly, will be delighted to grant to India every iota of independence possible after the war is won. By so doing Britain will lift from her own shoulders one of the most onerous examples of "the white man's burden" in the modern world.

However, it is to be hoped that India as a whole will, in the meantime, demonstrate better preparedness for self-rule than that shown by the Gandhi movement which seeks to impose the will of a small minority group upon a nation of 350 million souls. Such would-be minority rule is far from accord with the principles of free democracy.

An Atlanta Opportunity

The most dramatic job of World War II is going to be the cleaning out of Japanese from the island bases of the Pacific. The men who are going to spearhead that task are the aviators of the Navy and the Marine Corps. Theirs will be the glory of driving home to Japan the might of the United States.

Atlanta youths now have an opportunity to make part of the job which needs must be done an Atlanta deed. They can enlist now in the Navy's aviation cadet program and become a part of the four squadrons to be organized and named for Atlanta.

There is a symbolism to this that extends beyond the mere fact of the organization of four squadrons of Navy fliers. In a sense, the story of the war in the Pacific is much the same as the story of Atlanta. The Navy took a terrific blow at Pearl Harbor, shook its shoulders and waded into the fight, taking it back westward. Atlanta, too, took the blow of Sherman's destruction and fought back to become the greatest city of the south. That destruction fused a spirit in Atlanta that has not died, and will never die. It lies slumbering at times but, when danger comes, it rises again and the city does whatever task is necessary.

The Navy is forging a new fleet, greater than any that ever rode the ocean; greater in its strength but no greater in its determination and its ability to strike and strike hard.

Every young man will want to be a part of this new fleet. No better opportunity will be offered to take Atlanta's name to strike death and destruction to the Japanese.

The Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board at 796 Peachtree is waiting for Atlanta's answer.

Maybe Gandhi is right. But he can be wrong, too, if he thinks the Japs wouldn't strike a Mahatma with glasses.

Georgia Editors Say:

ARNALL'S CAMPAIGN FOR GOVERNORSHIP

(From The Columbus Enquirer.)

With the end of the Georgia gubernatorial campaign less than a month away, Attorney General Ellis Arnall made the prediction last week that he would win an overwhelming victory on September 9.

He took occasion during the speech to say that he had made no commitments for appointments and that he had made no promises as to construction of roads, adding that he was not "going into office hogtied and hamstrung by a lot of promises." He stated that:

"If I can't be Governor of the people I don't want to be Governor at all."

For several months Attorney General Arnall has been campaigning for the Democratic nomination for the governorship of Georgia. Armed with a constructive platform, he has made an aggressive campaign, seeking to acquaint the people of Georgia with his plan to abolish abuses in state government.

That Mr. Arnall has made a splendid impression upon the people of Georgia, there is no doubt. Having made a fine record in the office of attorney general after meritorious service in the general assembly of Georgia, Mr. Arnall has presented to the voters of this state his candidacy for the governorship in a straightforward manner.

Georgians have turned to Ellis Arnall as the man who will protect Georgia's institutions from political interference and who will destroy a vicious dictatorship that is threatening to assume the proportions of that which ruled the state of Louisiana in Huey Long's heyday.

Freedom-loving Georgians long for the return of democratic government in this state. The election of Ellis Arnall will assure this.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WILL BE MIRACLE WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—After a whirlwind round of official conferences and much controversy, Henry J. Kaiser, California "miracle man" of west coast shipbuilding, has returned home to build 500 of the giant Mars type of cargo planes.

If the Kaiser organization delivers with anything approaching its record-breaking achievement in shipbuilding, the plans for 500 huge cargo planes will be stepped up to 3,000—maybe even more.

But official Washington, outside of Mr. Donald Nelson, head of the War Production Board, who issued the letter of intent to issue a "letter of intent" is frankly skeptical. As for leaders in the aircraft industry, they say that the performance promised by Mr. Kaiser simply can't be done. It will be interesting to watch.

No one except Mr. Kaiser could have come to Washington with a plan of this kind. He knew nothing about building planes; nothing about the aircraft industry. But he had such a remarkable record in shipbuilding, about which he knew nothing until he entered that field a year or so ago, that officials of the WPB could not well turn him down.

SHIPBUILDING MARVEL Everyone is now familiar with the Kaiser organization shipbuilding achievement. It has reduced the time required for turning out the 10,000-ton Liberty type of cargo vessels from 120 days to 46 days. Eventually the company plans to reduce this further to 30 days—one month for each shipway. In the last war it took our shipbuilders some 300 days to complete the same type of vessel.

In the face of that remarkable record, no one was in position to challenge anything Mr. Kaiser, one of the construction engineers on the great Boulder Dam project, said he could do.

In giving the commitment for the planes, Production Chief Nelson made it a condition that there be no interference with the combat plane program. The company is to provide its own critical materials.

Mr. Kaiser not only says he can do this, but he has indicated that within a period of 10 months he can attain a production of 3,000 huge planes a year. The planes would be built in shipyards, not aircraft plants. Aeronautical engineers say that would be something more than a supermiracle.

FORD'S RECORD Air experts point out that Henry Ford, perhaps the nation's leading industrial production genius, got a contract in May, 1941, for his great Willow Run aircraft plant, but that today, some 16 months later, he has succeeded in turning out only two or three planes—and these experimental models.

Glenn L. Martin, whose company designed and built the first Mars flying boat, says that to convert the ship to the cargo-carrying type to be constructed by Mr. Kaiser would require the work of 600 engineers for four months alone. After that another 16 months would be needed to put the Mars into production—or 20 months in all.

Another aircraft manufacturer has said that even more critical than the shortage of materials is the shortage of trained technical men, engineers and highly skilled workmen. The place Mr. Kaiser could get a trained organization would be from the aircraft industry. To do this would interfere with the production schedules already set for combat planes.

But the California "miracle man" ignores these handicaps and promises to train his own force. All he needs, he says, is a few competent aeronautical engineers and the blueprints of the flying boat he is to build. He will take care of everything else in his own spectacular way.

ENTITLED TO TRIAL Production Chief Nelson could do little else than give Mr. Kaiser the opportunity he sought. Certainly what he has accomplished in the shipbuilding field entitles him to a trial. America has been made by men like Mr. Kaiser who succeeded in doing what other men described as the impossible. If he succeeds he will indeed deserve the title of industrial miracle man of the war. He might even be brought to Washington and placed in charge of the entire war production machinery.

In defense of the aircraft industry, however, it should be said that no complaints have come from any quarter on its performance record to date. It has achieved what many persons thought was the impossible. There seems little question of its ability to deliver the 185,000 planes Mr. Roosevelt set as our two-year goal after we were drawn into the war.

But for the shortage in critical materials the industry would be far ahead of its present-day deliveries. Some companies estimate that their production is being retarded by at least 30 per cent because of this shortage.

Just as the Kaiser organization reduced the time required for building a ship by two-thirds, other industrial units, under the stimulus of the war effort, have made such a remarkable progress in production of war goods that there simply aren't enough raw materials to keep up with the new pace. Eight months ago, for example, it was thought that 90,000,000 tons of steel a year, the normal top output of the American steel industry, would be sufficient to meet all war needs after curtailment of peace industries. Short cuts to production have been so numerous that there isn't enough steel to meet all purposes.

No Ordinary Election.

I have observed, and had part in, quite a large number of Georgia political campaigns. Some of them have been really hot, with excitement that grew intense as the voting dates neared. Some of them witnessed between opposing factions that was tremendous and some of them saw personalities banded back and forth. I should never have been involved.

All of which is by way of preamble to the thought that never, in my experience, has Georgia had a political campaign in which such vital issues were involved as the present campaign for the governorship.

During nine weeks of enforced inactivity, I have had ample time to think about this campaign and all that is involved. Today it seems evident to me that, at any rate not since 1912, when first I came to Georgia, has there been so important a campaign for public office.

Issues Are Fundamental. For the issues in this fight are fundamental. Not only fundamental, but fundamental to the honor and decency and ethics of right thinking men everywhere. Fundamental to the very freedoms for which the world of free men is fighting the Axis horror today.

I am trying to avoid saying that men and women whom I know, who cast their ballots on September 9 for Gene Talmadge will thereby reveal there is something wrong in their moral perception. But it is mighty hard to avoid that conclusion.

In past elections there was room for really honest difference in opinion. After all, in past elections, it was a matter of personality, largely and there need not have been any basic difference between those who voted for the candidates who seemed to me to be best, or those who voted for the other fellows.

But in this case there is a basic difference in the issue involved and the very fundamentals of human honor and decency enter into the picture.

One Issue Sufficient. There are, I am fully aware, many issues at stake. Perhaps the most vital of all is whether or not Georgia shall return to office a Governor who has already displayed a mounting trend toward the assumption of undue power—which is the path to dictatorship.

But it is just one issue—though a part of the total—that to my mind should decide.

That issue is the abhorrent thing Gene Talmadge did to the University System of Georgia. The story of the fantastic ouster of some dozen or so members of the faculties of various units in that system is one to make all who know the truth of it sick at heart.

It is a story of demagoguery, of trickery, of unjust charges, of conspiracy, and the job colored and urged we can all understand how mistakes occurred and give credit for an enormous score of accomplishment so far. It is our government—the only government we have got—and nobody will be disposed to sneer or cheer at failures. No other government in the world has done so much in so short a time and if our government can't do enough in the long run, we lose the war and our country.

racial co-education in Georgia, no matter who is governor.

There was no race issue, in the schools or anywhere else, in Georgia, until Talmadge stirred it up and created it. And there will be none unless Talmadge and his henchmen, in their desperation, bring it to pass.

These things are so fundamental to the very decencies of life, that is why I say more is involved in this election than in any I have known in Georgia.

That is why, too, it will be hard, in future, to respect properly men and women who give their support to the demagogue Talmadge.

For, even though their honesty as voters may be conceded, it will be well-nigh impossible to concede their ability to understand.

FAIR ENOUGH

People Misled? NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The bad news about war production has blown up into a storm since the first premonitory gust from the Office of War Information last week and it becomes apparent that the government, not the people, has been responsible. Up to this time, the people hadn't the faintest notion of the mass problems of production on such a scale and it may be added that they were misled to believe that everything was going very well.

Now, for the first time, the people are learning the rough outlines of this gigantic problem. We are learning that some factories, having plenty of what it takes to manufacture their allotted gadgets, have run ahead of other plants which were short of other materials needed for other parts destined to be fitted into the same gun, tank or ship. We are learning that some businessmen, being smarter and more forehanded than others and wanting to get on with the war, hustled around and laid in supplies to the impoverishment of those others.

There was an inkling of this sort of trouble last winter when a tough and ruthless industrialist who turned to the creation of airplanes was unofficially accused of slowing down production for the purpose of running up his profits. It was explained that, on the contrary, he was facing a shortage of some parts from submanufacturers a long way off, a shortage which would stall his own job, and therefore reduced speed rather than clean up everything on hand and disperse his staff. Having said that, he then would have to reassemble those who remained on the lot and recruit and fit into the production scheme new workers in place of those who surely would have strayed off down the road to new jobs.

Higgins Incident

Another case was that of the Higgins shipyard in Louisiana, where construction work was sawed off regardless of the financial loss because the supply of steel was no more than enough, if it was enough, for the existing yards and was more urgently needed for available ways than for additional yards.

Our people know nothing about such things and will be surprised, most of us, to learn that a slow-down may not be against the public interest under some conditions. The people know nothing about rates or problems of production on such a scale and the information given out by the government has been in comparative but unknown quantities.

Moreover, bad as the news is on the basis of production compared to total need, it can't be so terribly bad on the plain basis of achievement. The plants are visible to the naked eye which still retains a fading impression of a humiliating spectacle not more than 18 months ago in which the soldiers of the first draft were playing with mock weapons and hypothetical tanks and we were told that we hadn't enough first-class planes to fight Guatemala.

More over, the vehicles, planes and weapons and uniforms are visible to the naked eye which still retains a fading impression of a humiliating spectacle not more than 18 months ago in which the soldiers of the first draft were playing with mock weapons and hypothetical tanks and we were told that we hadn't enough first-class planes to fight Guatemala.

We Were Pitiful We were so unimpressive, so unarmed that when Britain lost her weapons in France, the best we could send to France were some old French 75s and single-shot Springfield, and they begged and were glad to get from us a collection of ordinary household .22s and target pistols.

A year ago, he it remembered, our great problem was "tooling up" and we were not in a position to use more than a pinch of many raw materials of which we have now used up huge stocks, because most plants weren't ready to produce anything. That great job seems to have been rushed to completion in much less time than Germany used for a similar task and now the cry is shortage or unequal distribution of materials and labor, which is a job of national management or government and not any responsibility of the people, who couldn't do anything about it if they tried beyond economizing as individuals, and throwing into the piles their old tires, pots and pans and hot-water bottles.

This task of management is strictly up to the national government, and because government is human and the job colored and urged we can all understand how mistakes occurred and give credit for an enormous score of accomplishment so far. It is our government—the only government we have got—and nobody will be disposed to sneer or cheer at failures. No other government in the world has done so much in so short a time and if our government can't do enough in the long run, we lose the war and our country.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

OLD SALEM I make it a rule to leave the news of the religious world to my good friends, Dr. Louie D. Newton and Dr. Ashby Jones, and their columns. Now and then, always asking their pardon, I must intrude upon their field and this is one of those times.

Last Sunday I went down to Old Salem camp ground to be the guest of H. Y. McCord, better known as Uncle Henry. Uncle Henry has two enthusiasms, Christianity and baseball, and I have been happy to be associated with him often at Ponce de Leon park and at Old Salem.

Uncle Henry has been around this most interesting of all worlds for 86 years and he looks forward to the future. He and his family, like the others, serve dinner-on-the-grounds at Old Salem on that "first Sunday." Old Salem is worth going to see and that noonday dinner on the grounds, with the different family groups spreading dinner, is not the least of the attractions.

Uncle Henry McCord follows the old tradition. Others may content themselves with fried chicken and all the associated dishes. But, 70 years or so ago, when Uncle Henry went there for the first time, there was served fried chicken and barbecue and Brunswick stew and all the associated dishes, plus cakes and pies, so Uncle Henry serves that array every year.

What I was really getting around to is the fact that every year at least one sermon is preached by the Rev. Bascom Anthony. I can say quite frankly, and with complete sincerity, that if you have not heard him preach you should watch the newspapers and go hear him if he is ever in your town.

A RARE MINISTER I have slight patience, if any, with those intelligible and incoherent sentences in daily radio shows; and the usual shouting, squawking evangelists who come into a town and leaves with as much of that town's money as he can, seems to me a most unworthy person.

But there are real evangelists and it seems to me, in reviewing the many I've heard, that the only one worthy the name is the Rev. Bascom Anthony.

He was born to be a preacher. He is a born evangelist. He sounds best in the out-of-doors. His voice, at 76 years of age, does not need the assistance of a microphone or amplifier. He can shake the dew off the grass at 500 yards.

I always am a bit suspicious of those gentlemen who advertise themselves as purveyors of the "old-fashioned" gospel. The Rev. Bascom Anthony will tell you there is no other kind.

He hears to the line. He is never in doubt about things and yet he is not an intolerant person or a bigot in any sense of the word. Like Uncle Henry, he has been around a long time and he sort of knows about things.

He started out as a printer's devil at the age of 12. He went to no school after that. He got a college education working in a print and newspaper shop. He started preaching at 21.

He preaches. He does not deliver polite and sweet little essays. He thunders like an Old Testament prophet and there is some of Jehovah's thunder in his words.

SOME OF HIS SAYINGS

He can use some of the most startling and dramatic epigrams I have ever heard.

For instance, whoever but Bascom Anthony would say: "A buzzard and a humming bird fly over the same ground, but both find different things by which to light."

His father must have been quite a philosopher. His father, a preacher, was visited almost daily by, as Dr. Anthony is wont to say, "bored, pests, half-wits and nit-wits." Some of them would stay for days. "But," says Dr. Anthony, "Pa would say, 'Yes, children, but everyone else feels by these poor creatures just as you do. Nobody else will bother with them. They never had a good time in their lives. Let's all join in and give them a good time if they never have another.'"

He has kept this philosophy. He will never tire of talking with those who gather about him, even newspapermen.

His talk is filled with good ore for those who like stories. I recall best the one of the neighborhood pest who tried to call on a dying man and the dying man sent word he didn't want to see him "until he had a nest of buzzard eggs he wanted hatched."

His speech and his similes are from experience and from life. His life, and when you find a man who is like that you know it. He has hewn so closely to the line that there is nothing phony about him. You know that as soon as you talk with him.

Well, I don't seem to have got anywhere with this. I started out about Old Salem and hardly got into an introduction to the Rev. Bascom Anthony, one of the old prophets, when my space ran out. If you ever read where he is to preach, go hear him thunder. He won't read you an essay.

The Free Who Grow Weary Must Keep Going Without Benefit of a Whip

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

It is almost impossible to preserve the sharp edge of perfection that makes a champion. A touch of indigestion or even a word may destroy it.

In one fight the champion is a flawless machine; in the next, for no apparent reason, he "can't get going." A barb of criticism has weakened his confidence.

A famous football squad approached the end of the season unbeaten and untied. Their playing seemed inspired perfection. Then a national magazine gave them several pages of praise, and next week they were humiliated by a team they should have beaten. They felt too sure of themselves and their inspiration was gone.

Our chief danger here at home is psychological. We cannot be defeated until we are defeated in spirit. There is small danger of our feeling defeated, and we need not fear the spirit of disloyalty, but we must be eternally on guard against tired and bored and indifferent spirits.

Enthusiasm, like other emotions, is an abnormal state that soon exhausts itself. The greater

The pilot of this compendium of useless knowledge often has been accused of lacking powers of resistance in the face of temptation. Whether the tempter is a home-made necktie salesman, a friend with a bag of peanuts or a paper sack full of succulent onions discovered in the pantry an hour before company is coming.

But he rises to defend himself. He has never turned to the last chapter of a whodunit mystery story to learn who actually did play the Earl of Stinkshire and how. Maybe one reason is that he never has cared a darn.

But what he wants to brag on just now is this: Somewhere in The Constitution shop there is a week's advance supply of the cartoon comics. They can be seen, I am sure, by a staff member occupying a high position, such as a columnist's.

Yet your oversight has fought strenuously and—so far—successfully against the temptation to see what's going to happen to Little Orphan Annie tomorrow morning and through the rest of the week. He has realized for several weeks that she was due for a crisis. Life was going too smoothly for Annie, organizing and directing the Junior Commandos. No cloud was on the horizon.

And then old Doc Elden came into the picture again. As this is written he has just stepped into a deep hole in the secret bay.

Will he drown? Will he emerge? Will he catch Annie, alone in her skiff and bend her to his will? I could hunt up the advance numbers and learn the truth and go home and slumber undisturbed. But I shall not fudge. I shall not cheat. I refuse to take unfair advantage over our regular subscribers.

But of this I am confident. Annie may be captured, bound, confined in a dungeon cell where the incoming tide rises higher and higher—up to her chin. But—take my word for it—nothing fatal will happen to Annie. I understand the contract of Harold Gray, her creator, has 67 years to run.

Tin Razor Blades

In view of the increasing scarcity of lead and tin, so important in the war effort, I would suggest that the proper department check up on razor blade manufacturers. I doubt if they find any steel around the razor blade plants.

It is true, that with my Scottish ancestry creeping to the front, I am addicted to buying cheap blades. I have experimented with many brands with equally unsatisfactory results.

Time was—and not so long ago—that a blade would last me a week, starting Sunday. It is true my Saturday shave left much to be desired but I rarely rub chins with a fair damsel on a Saturday.

The blades I get nowadays provide a fair shave the first day. On the second day I require a three times over and even after that there is enough stubble left to remove an ounce of lint from the towel, which is hardly ornamental on a human physiognomy and I hope I'll never have to spell that word again.

It may be that my whiskers—of what would be whiskers if permitted to flourish undisturbed—are more resistant than in my callow youth. But I am sure they have not attained that stage of toughness which calls for the use of a blow torch for elimination.

It may be that I have overlooked a brand of razor blade which is as sharp and enduring as a Damascus sword. It may be that some agent or manufacturer of such a blessing to the masculine sex may desire to demonstrate his product. But I would suggest that, even as one daffodil doesn't mean winter is over, one blade doesn't convert hope into certainty. Nothing less than a dozen would provide a fair test.

No Commodores

This department is considering offering a substantial reward and perhaps a screen test for the discovery of any young man who shows up at home on leave in any naval uniform from yeoman to ensign and is not addressed by his friends as "admiral."

Which reminds me that I asked a naval officer about the rank of commodore. I recalled heroes of the past—Commodore Perry and others.

He said there isn't any such animal—or rank—in the Navy now. Commodores are commanders or presidents of yacht clubs. And very fine entertainers, too, he said.

Wrestle Champ Has Full-Time Job, But Also Goes to School

Will Enter Emory's School of Theology.

By FLOYD BASKETTE.

If you think you have your hands full, listen to this: Bill Holt, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Holt, of 572 Rankin street, is an engineering stock lister for an automatic sprinkler firm in Atlanta, whose job is so vital to defense he has been classified as 4-D.

On Sundays he is minister of children at Grace Methodist church, teaches a Sunday school class and presides at a young people's youth fellowship. Sometimes he preaches at a rural community church.

But that's just the beginning of the young man's talents. He is a junior at Emory University, carrying nearly a full course of study, is majoring in journalism, but will enter theology school and become a Methodist minister. He is president of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity and is on the interfraternity council.

And that's still not all there is to say about the versatile Mr. Holt, age 22.

He is a four-time state champion bantamweight wrestler, won the southeastern A. A. U. title in 1940 and advanced to the semifinals in the national A. A. U. the same year. He is undefeated as an intramural wrestler at Emory.

He is coach of the Georgia Evening College wrestling team which won the state championship last year and went through the season with but one match lost. He is athletic director of Atlanta Boys' Club, coaching boxing, swimming, wrestling, basketball and tennis.

Holt is proud of his job with the sprinkler firm, where he has been employed for four years, because he orders materials from blueprints and is the only one capable of holding this job at present.

His main ambition, however, is to become a minister. He will enter the Candler School of Theology at Emory in June, 1944, and will complete his study in 1947.

He attended Tech High, spent one year at Georgia Tech night school and transferred to Emory from Georgia Evening College, where he was enrolled one quarter.

He attends classes in the mornings at Emory, works from 1 to 7 p. m. at his downtown job, and has a full schedule Sunday. Somewhere in between he manages to run his fraternity, serve as chaplain for Tau Nu Kappa, a local fraternity, wrestle in amateur bouts and devote time to coaching at Georgia Evening College and Boys' Club.

His undergraduate major is journalism. "I got interested in journalism because it gives me something to keep me busy," he says.

Retired Banker From Omaha Praises Paper

Congratulates Constitution, Ralph McGill for Backing Roosevelt.

Samuel Patterson, retired banker from Omaha, Neb., "just had to come by and congratulate The Constitution for backing Roosevelt so wholeheartedly," he said on a visit to the offices yesterday.

"Since I've been in Atlanta I've been reading Ralph McGill's column and I wanted to shake hands with a regular Democrat—my kind of Democrat," Patterson smiled. "I'm so tired of the Republicans in -braska. We don't have many Democrats and the whole state is fighting Roosevelt."

"They don't agree with him on anything—even foreign policy—because they dislike him as a person."

"It is surely good to read a newspaper which is Democratic. We have only one left in Nebraska. The rest of them fight the President all the time."

Patterson said it was doubtful whether Senator Norris would run again, but that the Democrats might have a chance in the three-way race which was developing.

Patterson has been here visiting his daughter, Mrs. Doris P. Tullis, 1747 Johnson road, N. E.

As he left the office, Patterson stopped by to talk with McGill and asked: "How do you think you'll come out in the governor's race? After listening to Talmadge the other night a stranger would think he was running against you. I don't believe he ever mentioned Arnall."

FIEND FOR WORK—Bill Holt, of Atlanta, has a full-time job downtown and in addition is at Emory preparing for the ministry. He is a state champion wrestler. In his "spare" time he teaches a church group, coaches wrestling at Georgia Evening College, and directs athletics for the Atlanta Boys' Club.

Talmadge Ad On CD Folder Brings Protest

Dade County Chairman Resigns Over 'Political Capitalization.'

Civilian defense material, used as an advertisement begging the voters to return Talmadge to office, resulted yesterday in the resignation of John W. Murphy, chairman of civilian defense in Dade county, at the far northwest corner of Georgia.

The pamphlets, on which are printed Talmadge's picture and a plea for his re-election, were printed in lots of 10,000 and distributed by state highway patrolmen in state cars.

Georgia civilian defense leaders emphasized yesterday they were not responsible for the condition which caused the resignation of Director Murphy.

The Murphy letter, received in Atlanta yesterday, read: "Trenton, Ga., Aug. 12, 1942. "Governor Eugene Talmadge, State Capitol, Atlanta, Ga. "Dear Governor:

"I hereby tender my resignation as chairman civilian defense of Dade county, Georgia, effective immediately. This is regretted on my part.

"It was my privilege and pleasure to serve my country on foreign soil during the last world war, and during the present war I am ready and eager to serve in any capacity in which I am capable. This was the spirit that prompted me to accept the chairmanship for this county.

"You are now using our once respected but now deplored state patrol as an agency to distribute large bundles of purported instructions to the civilian defense, which, in fact, is nothing more than your campaign literature bearing your picture with the slogan, 'Let's Keep Talmadge.' From the bottom of my heart I resent your effort to try to capitalize politically on the patriotism of the civilian men and women of this state.

"Civilian defense is sacred. Look at England and her heroic citizens. Any man who seeks to degrade this service by injecting cheap political trickery is unworthy to be my commanding officer.

"It is still my purpose to co-operate with civilian defense individually but without any official connection. However, upon the election of a Governor who will assume the duties and obligations as the commander of civilian defense in a true patriotic spirit, I will immediately tender my services to him."

FLIT KILLS MOTHS, FLIES, MOSQUITOES, AND MANY OTHER HOUSEHOLD INSECTS!

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

MOTIVES.

"A wide gap exists between knowing what is good and doing the good. No human need is more urgent than to bridge the chasm between the two."

"This book helps bridge that gap. And it does it in a straightforward way, salted with humor and seasoned with experience," says Dr. Ralph W. Sockman in his appreciation of Dr. King's latest book. And I heartily agree with Dr. Sockman.

This book must be reckoned among the very few outstanding religious books in these recent months. I would put it along with Morrison's "The Christian and the War," Van Kirk's "Religion and the World of Tomorrow," Butterick's "Prayer," and Bromfield's "Until the Day Break." I still hold to Tolstoy's "War and Peace," published in 1864-69, as the greatest book, outside the Bible, that I have read since Pearl Harbor.

Dr. King lives in Georgia, which would tend to prejudice me in favor of his book, but you will not require predispositions to agree that this is really a great book. It is realistic without being shallow; practical without being trite.

The book deals with fundamental Christian convictions in dealing with everyday life. Dr. King states the ethical ideals of Christianity as Jesus taught them by precept and example. He finds large place for the writings of Paul. He goes further and suggests motivating factors that impart moral strength to lives that are hard beset by strong and subtle temptations.

The guiding theme of the volume is the supremacy of love. And here we have the encompassing philosophy of God's love towards us in Jesus Christ—the love that is commended in the fact that "while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." I quote two sentences that will give you some insight into this book:

"Jesus is the test and norm of our religious thinking. The Bible in its entirety is the touchstone of ethical standards." Dr. King uses these quotations from Jesus in setting up his thesis: "For I tell you, unless your goodness exceeds that of the scribes and Pharisees, you will never get into the realm of Heaven." "You make void the Word of God by your traditions."

WARD'S OUTLET SHOE STORES 103 Whitehall ACROSS FROM CENTER THEATER

DON'T CALL WASHINGTON—unless you must!

With the war effort of 27 United Nations centered upon it, Washington is probably the busiest city in the world. It is fast outgrowing its physical limits—and its telephone facilities.

Since Pearl Harbor, Long Distance telephone traffic in and out of Washington has jumped tremendously. Calls of vital importance sometimes get caught in the crush.

We cannot add further facilities because the necessary materials needed are being used for the manufacture of the weapons of war.

So we urge you to cut down on every possible Washington call—in order to keep these "talk-tracks" clear for the urgent Long Distance calls of war agencies and industries engaged in war work. We know we can count on your cooperation.

These suggestions, offered especially for Washington, also apply to other busy cities across the country.

1. As far as possible, avoid all Long Distance calls not directly related to the war effort.
2. If you must make a Long Distance call, place it in the off-peak hours—

Before 9 a. m. 5 p. m. to 7 p. m.
12 noon to 2 p. m. After 9 p. m.

War calls must come first!

All in the Game

By JACK TROY

An Assist Frank Haynes, an old Orange Bowl companion, happened to be around the Cracker dugout when Clyde Humphries arrived during the initial double-header with Knoxville.

"He's a husky, nice-looking chap," Haynes reported. "He got in too late to put on a uniform, but he says he is ready to pitch."

"Talk about extra-inning games, he said they had 30 at Dallas and lost about 24 of them. I told him we probably hadn't had 30 in the whole Southern League."

"Oana's got it," Haynes continued. "Humphreys says he is using a knuckle ball that breaks two or three times, and has good control as a pitcher."

"You ought to see him after the game if he isn't gone. He'll give you a good snappy interview," Haynes suggested.

I didn't tell Haynes, but he had supplied a fair interview himself.

A case of interviewing the interviewer.

And a "Putout" A Knoxville fan rushed up to the press box early in the second game when Dutch Hoffman made his weird decision on Harley Boss' grounder.

"I apologize for the intrusion," he said, "and I want you to know I'm really with the Crackers. I'd like to see them win. They can finish in the first division and Knoxville can't."

"But please tell me how an umpire could call a play like that? I want to be fair. And I think I am reasonably tolerant. I know they have a tough job."

"But how could Boss be out when he easily beat the throw to first base and Browne wasn't even standing near the bag?"

The Smokies were rallying and were behind only one run in the game when the decision, violently protested by Bert Niehoff, ended the inning.

Obviously Hoffman couldn't see where Browne was standing. All the fans could. So could Bob Kober. In this case, Kober should have had a little talk with Hoffman and let justice prevail.

Foul Ball! Baseball fans are strong for the new innovation at Ponce de Leon park, where war bonds and stamps are exchanged for balls fouled into bleachers and stands.

Oddly, the percentage of recovered balls was remarkably low on the first night of the new and popular pastime, only three being available to the fans in two games.

One, however, was good for a $25 bond.

All night long a $50 bond was in play but, if fouled at all, simply struck the screen and rolled back on the playing field.

Percentage of foul balls will be higher in most remaining home games. Three in two games is extraordinary. Usually eight or 10 fouts go into bleachers or grandstand during the progress of one game.

All the balls used in the games at Ponce de Leon are stamped, and range in denomination from the lowest stamp to a $50 war bond, and these are given, in addition to the regular pass for an ensuing Cracker game, on return of the ball to the office during or after the game.

Changing World I came upon Mr. Lamar Ball sitting disconsolately at his desk and gazing out the window.

Knowing the intimate contact Mr. Ball has had with the political scene, also the other duties imposed upon him as magazine editor, I wondered if this show of melancholy had anything to do with overwork.

He had the mournful look of a bloodhound who had just lost the scent of the fleeing Eliza on the river of ice.

"I used to sit here on quiet days and flip gem clips at Hyman Bizinsky across the street at the Southern Engraving Company," Ball explained, sadly.

"He never quite figured out where they came from. He'd slip behind the window casing and search our building, and we were too quick for him."

"Now Hyman is in Ireland. Bizinsky is just a rose in Ireland. And there are no more gem clips and rubber bands," Ball concluded, heaving a heavy sigh.

Crackers Take Double-Header From Smokies

Five-Run Rally In Last Frame Saves Second

Knoxville Blows 4-Run Lead and Chance To Split Series

By JACK TROY

Just when everything looked darkest and it appeared the best they could get was an even break in the series with Knoxville, a Cracker rally came up like thunder in the seventh inning of the second game, five runs were scored and the home nine captured both ends of the double-header, 6 to 2 and 6 to 5, last night.

The odds were all against the Crackers pulling the second game out of the losing column. There were two outs in the last half of the seventh and Knoxville leading by 5 to 1. Then suddenly they were the Crackers of old. Each Cracker came up and cracked a single. It was deadly systematic.

Herb Anderson, who had gone into the seventh having allowed only two hits, was relieved by Steve Warchol after the Crackers had combed him for four singles in the seventh. Warchol couldn't stop the attack and the Crackers kept slugging until the winning run was across the plate.

Skipper Paul Richards, who seemingly had been guilty of leaving Rene Cortes in too long in the second game, did a neat bit of pinch-hitting in the big seventh. But Pep Rambert's role was vital. He got two hits in the inning, both starting and finishing the winning assault.

LOCKBAUM INVINCIBLE. Emile Lockbaum pitched masterful ball to win the first game, a not a Smokie advancing past first until the ninth when the Smokies scored their two runs. Lockbaum allowed only five hits in the first game.

Cortes was considerably less than masterful, but his mates had what it took to save the game.

The Smokies, as said, seemed to have the second game in the bag. But Anderson was in the hole, holding the wide lead and the unpredictable Crackers cut loose on the least provocation.

And so the stage is set for the invasion tonight of the second-place Nashville Volunteers, who are to take over the leadership of the Southern League. A double-header is scheduled for 7 o'clock. It will be the third straight twin bill for the Crackers.

Last night's dual triumph, providing three out of four for the series, may provide the spark necessary to cope successfully with the invading Volunteers.

FIRST GAME. The Crackers opened the scoring in the third inning, thanks to a double by Lockbaum, an infield hit by Letchas on which Lockbaum moved to third, and Glick's fielder's choice. There was another run in the fourth on singles by Browne, Richards and Blakeney.

It was preliminary to a four-run fifth inning. Letchas, Glick, Mauldin and Deal hit successive singles. Letchas and Glick scored. Browne sacrificed, O'Brien popped to third. Richards, however, singled to right, scoring Mauldin and Deal.

On the Knoxville side it was a case of too much Lockbaum. Shelley singled after two were out in the first. Howell went out to Browne. Finley led off the second with a single. Tyler and Lamatina fanned and Waldrop forced Finley. From then until the eighth, it was three up and three down. Waldrop walked with two out in the eighth. Coffey doubled, scored and became the first Smokie to reach second. There was one out. Shelley dropped a double near the right field line. Boss stopping at third. Howell singled, scoring Deal and Shelley and breaking up the shutout. Finley hit into a double play.

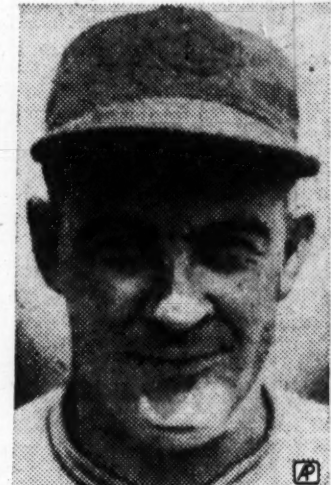

SECOND GAME. In spite of a double by Boss and a hit by Shelley, the Smokies failed to score in the first inning. There was one out when Boss hit for two bases. He moved to third on Shelley's infield hit. Clean-up Batter Howell hit into a double play. Cortes to Blakeney to Browne.

The second game was scoreless until the third when, with one out, Mauldin doubled, skied left and scored on a single by Deal. Cortes, as usual, couldn't stand prosperity, and the Smokies quickly took the lead in the fourth. Boss hit his second straight double of the game to start the rally. Shelley hit a line drive to right center and Mauldin just got his hands on it after a sprint. It was another double. Boss stopped at third. Howell grounded out. Letchas to Browne, and Boss scored. Lewis singled to center, sending Shelley home. Cortes then retired Taylor and Lamatina on strikeouts.

The fifth inning produced three more runs for the Smokies. Waldrop walked, Anderson singled and Campanis hit safely off the glove of Cortes. Boss forced Campanis and Waldrop scored. Letchas threw low at first base trying for a double play and Anderson also scored. Shelley singled, scoring Boss.

An unbelievable thing happened in the sixth. Lamatina led off with a triple to left and didn't score as Waldrop grounded out. Anderson fanned and Campanis fouled to Glick.

Rambert started and finished a winning Cracker rally in the seventh. Pep batted for Cortes and singled to right. Letchas skied to Glick. Glick slashed a single past

HE'S HEAD MAN—Larry French continues to lead the National League in pitching. The Brooklyn southpaw, who was considered through several years ago, blanked the Phils, 1 to 0, Wednesday for his 12th win of the year against one loss.

Coke Named To Fulton Bank Executive Job

Promotion to Vice Presidency Announced by F. W. Blalock.

Erle Coke, a vice president of the Fulton National Bank, has been appointed executive vice president by the board of directors, F. W. Blalock, president, announced last night.

Coke will assume his new duties immediately, Blalock said.

Well known over the state, Coke was named a vice president of the bank in June, 1938.

From 1934 to 1938, he was manager of the Atlanta office of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and also was state director of the National Emergency Council, an office which served to coordinate all federal agencies.

A native of Dawson, Coke was graduated from the University of Georgia in 1915. During the World War, he served with the 18th Machinegun Battalion in France and in 1922-23 was national vice commander of the American Legion.

For a number of years, he was executive officer of the State Board of Regents.

Prisoner of War.

It was learned today that one of the flyers who accompanied British bombers in Fourth of July operations against objectives in the occupied countries was now a prisoner of war. He previously had been reported missing.

RAF sources said the "strong force" of bombers which dropped a torrent of high explosive and incendiary bombs on Mainz again last night found the fire fighters and air defenders of that rail-river traffic hub wearied and scattered by the terrific blasting of the night before.

The German high command acknowledged that "destruction on a large scale and extensive fires" were caused and said the civilian population had shown "exemplary behavior."

The Air Ministry said only five planes failed to return from the attack, although informed quarters said the bombing force was about the same as the night before—250 to 400 planes—when 16 British planes were lost.

London had a predawn raid today, the first since July 30, in which a few bombs destroyed buildings and trapped persons in the cellars. Seven persons were reported killed.

3 Beachheads Being Cleared, Reports Say

tinuing their support of Vice Admiral Ghormley's air-naval-land forces attacking in the Solomons.

Six Zero planes escorting Japanese ships yesterday tried to intercept the Flying Fortress and medium Allied bombers in their first sweep. Two of them were shot down and three were damaged.

Seven more Japanese fighters engaged the Allied craft during the second bombing run, one of them being destroyed. No aerial interference was met in the third attack.

"We sustained some damage, but all our planes returned," the communiqué concluded.

Latest reports indicated that the Leathernecks, spearheading an assault which may develop into a United Nations' grand offensive to drive the invaders out of the South Seas, were making steady progress against bitter resistance.

Unconfirmed advices said American parachute troops, making their first historic appearance in battle, were used as shock forces in the attack.

Strong American reinforcements were said to be pouring into the seven-day old battle as the Japanese fought desperately to hold their strategic island bases 900 miles northeast of Australia.

Observers here surmised that Allied warships were bringing up fresh reinforcements and landing them under cover of heavy barrages.

(In London, the Netherlands government-in-exile announced that a Dutch Royal Navy submarine operating with the eastern fleet attacked a Japanese convoy and scored hits on two ships.

"When last seen the ships were fully ablaze and must be considered total losses," a communiqué said.

(Military experts said it could be assumed that the Dutch submarine as well as other Allied undersea craft were operating in the South Seas battle zone, placed there to cripple enemy reinforcement attempts before Vice Admiral Robert L. Ghormley opened the American offensive last Friday.

(In addition, General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced that giant U. S. Army Flying Fortresses

Soothed and relieve heat rash on you or baby, with cooling Mexican Heat Powder. Absorbs perspiration, offsets forerunner of heat rashes smashed at enemy shipping off Rabaul, New Britain, a major base for Japanese troops and supply ships moving to the Solomons.

(The big four-motored Fortresses were officially credited with setting fire to a 15,000-ton enemy ship and two medium-sized vessels and leaving a fourth ship foundering.)

While only meager details filtered back from the fighting zone, reports indicated that the American "Devil Dogs" were slowly closing in on the key Tulagi harbor, one of the finest naval base sites in the southwest Pacific, and relentlessly pushing the enemy back from other hard-won beachheads.

It was believed here that the Marines were attacking the enemy on Florida, Guadalcanal and Malaita Islands in the southeast Solomons, exploiting what were officially described as "new twists in the business of killing Japs."

Hayden Leonard, a correspondent of the Australian Broadcasting Commission, said the American counterinvaders were believed to have broken the Japanese hold on Tulagi harbor.

"The Japanese have been driven from many of their defensive positions after fierce hand-to-hand fighting," Leonard said.

DeKalb CD Plans

New Fall Classes

New classes in first aid, nutrition, manuscript writing, wardrobe planning, child care and canteen work will be included in a fall program of activities planned this week by the DeKalb county women's division of Civilian Defense, it was announced yesterday.

The members, meeting at Pine Lake, reviewed progress on projects now under way, and prepared to increase their efforts with the coming of cooler weather.

Maintaining recreation centers for neighborhood meetings and supervising the care of children for mothers engaged in war work are two of the projects planned. Mrs. Augustus M. Roan is chairman of the DeKalb division.

Whether you have a few suitcases or many items of furniture to be removed, you can find somebody for the job by turning to Classification 84—"Moving and Storage."

Help Mrs. L'Engle Support New Red Cross War Work

♦ ♦ ♦ IF YOU BELONG to a club or group which desires to do something for the men in hospitals and camps, and you do not know exactly what to do, Mrs. Philip L'Engle can solve your problem. In a conversation with her at a recent social gathering, she was enthusiastic over her chairmanship of the Camp and Hospital Service Council of the American Red Cross.

It will be her duty to take care of the comfort and recreational needs of soldiers and sailors in the area to which she is assigned. This area comprises Lawson General Hospital, the Naval Aviation Base, Fort McPherson, Conley, the Third Army base, and the Signal Corps at Athens. Mrs. Fred Myers, of Marietta, is her co-chairman, and members of 20 Red Cross chapters in the surrounding counties will support the worthy project.

Mrs. L'Engle makes a plea for bedside and utility bags, playing cards—not necessarily new decks—games, such as checkers, chess, parcheesi, and dominoes; crank victrolas, records and needles, card and ping-pong tables. She hopes money will be sent to subscribe to magazines, and will gladly receive checks for this specific purpose addressed in her name of 848 Peachtree street, in care of the American Red Cross. Donations also may be left at the above address, and Mrs. L'Engle will convey them to the right place.

Red Cross Camp and Hospital Service Councils are organized as a clearing-house for people desiring to contribute to the comfort and contentment of men on military and naval reservations. Those well-known and capable Atlantans, Mrs. N. M. Owensby and Mrs. Ralph McGill, are on the local committee, and the names of other well-known Atlantans will be added. This work comes directly under the Red Cross field director, who knows exactly what the need will be in this new arm of the American Red Cross.

Aside from her visits to hospitals and camps, Mrs. L'Engle spends one-half of each day at Red Cross headquarters at 848 Peachtree street, where she directs her work destined to bring pleasure to the soldiers and sailors in the service of the United States.

♦ ♦ ♦ THE NAME of Katharine Brown has special significance to Atlantans, because she was completely sold on the valuable moving picture possibilities of Margaret Mitchell's remarkable and famous book, "Gone With the Wind." After reading the tome, she advised David Selznick to lose no time in purchasing the film rights. All the world now knows that her superb judgment brought a thirty million dollar revenue to the Selznick organization.

This remarkable and astute woman was head of the Selznick story department for 10 years, a position she recently gave up to become filmland's first woman executive, as vice president of the Hunt Stromberg Company. Margaret Mitchell has this to say of Katharine Brown's new position: "Whatever this brilliant and clever woman undertakes, it will be well done." Katharine Brown first came to Atlanta in search of southern talent to take part in the technical film of "Gone With the Wind." She was responsible for casting Alicia Rhett, of Charleston, as "India Wilkes," and Bebe Anderson, of Birmingham, in the bazaar scene in the picture. Since then, Bebe has appeared on Broadway in a successful play, and it was Katharine who first discovered her talent.

Katharine Brown came here again to attend the brilliant premiere of the moving picture at Loew's Grand theater, and she made a pleasing impression on a host of admiring friends. She is quite a pretty and attractive woman, and above all, she possesses charming femininity.

When "Gone With the Wind" was shown on the first anniversary of the picture under the auspices of the British War Relief, she again visited Atlanta, the city which has a warm spot in her heart.

In private life she is happily married to James Barrett, a well-known New York attorney. They have two adorable daughters, Linda and Anne Barrett. Linda is just now old enough to see "Gone With the Wind," but heretofore her parents have not permitted her to view the movies.

Let Boy Make First Move To Call for the Second Date

Dear Dixie:

I have been going with a boy for a year. About three weeks ago we had a fuss although we were engaged to be married, the very next month. Someone told him some things that were not true, and I have not heard from him since, although I have written. Did I do wrong by writing? I do not want to marry him because I am not sure that I love him enough. I have met a boy whom I love

By Dixie George.

very much. On our first date we had a grand time. We went to a dance, and although I do not dance, I did not mind him dancing with the other girls. The other day we went for a ride with two other couples and they treated me very coldly, which hurt me very much. I do not talk very much and neither does this boy. What would you do in my case; write to the boy to whom I was engaged and try to make up, or just forget about the auto ride, and continue to go on with this boy?

Do you think I should call him and tell him I was not mad the day we went on the ride? Do you think I should let him make the first move? He would talk to the other girls but when I say anything he would cut me off very short. Do you think he meant to treat me this way. I am not pretty but I wear nice clothes and I'm very friendly and liked by most all people. Is it because I do not talk much that I am not very popular with the younger crowd.

HEARTBROKEN.

Yes, I think you did wrong in writing to the boy. If he was so small as to believe something about you that was not true, he is not worth worrying over. It is his move now, so do not contact him if you do not love him, either for if you marry just to be a "Mrs." you will be unhappy all the rest of your life. I would forget about him.

As for the other boy, I do not think it was very polite of him dancing if he knew you could not, and he certainly wasn't treating you with much consideration. As for these other people treating you so coldly, I wouldn't worry too much about that for perhaps they mean nothing whatsoever by it. I think it is the other boy's move now, so just sit steady in the boat and if he is worth dating he will call you and come back to see you. I would not say that it was your quietness that makes you unpopular. I think the trouble is that the people you have come in contact with are just not sociable and do not appreciate your good qualities.

MY DAY: Jan Struther Honors Our Pioneer Women

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY, Wednesday.—I have a most delightful letter from Jan Struther, in which she incloses a copy of the inscription which is on the statue of the pioneer woman which stands on the campus of the Texas State College for Women, at Denton, Texas. It reads:

"Marking a trail in the pathless wilderness, pressing forward with unswerving courage, she met each untold situation with a resourcefulness equal to the needs: With a glad heart she brought to her frontier family her homelands' cultural heritage: With delicate spiritual sensitiveness she illumined the dullness of routine and the loneliness of isolation with beauty and with life abundant: And with all she lives with a casual unawareness of her value to civilization. Such was the pioneer woman, the unsung saint of the nation's immortals."

Now I want to quote you a comment from Jan Struther's letter on this inscription. She says:

"What I like particularly is 'With a glad heart she brought to her frontier family her homelands' cultural heritage.' It always seems to me that what the frontier woman had to do in space, the present-day woman has got to do in time. That is, she has to preserve everything that was good and worthy of preserving in the pre-war world, and manage to weave it into the texture of the simpler and more Spartan world she and her children will have to build up in the future."

That seems to me an idea quite fascinating to think about. I want to add to it the line in the inscription which I like best: "And with all she lived with casual unawareness of her value to civilization."

There we have the secret which should be driven home to every woman. In countless homes in this country today there are women who are "casually unaware" of the great accomplishments which are theirs. They will be recognized by history, but today we forget them because they do their daily tasks so casually that their heroism and the vital place which they fill in our world passes almost unnoticed, and certainly unsung in the present.

Quinine for the Expectant Mother

By Dr. William Brady.

In the British Medical Journal, a physician practicing in Southern Rhodesia stated that expectant mothers he had treated with malaria had remarkably easy and quick confinements.

In a review of colonial medicine published in Paris in 1937 Drs. Joyeux and Sice assert that pregnancy is not a contra-indication to treatment with quinine.

Many other medical authorities report from their experience that quinine, far from being an abortifacient, as it has been popularly regarded, is not capable of causing onset of labor, but that it does strengthen uterine contractions and make them more frequent once they have begun.

In recent years many medical men have regularly prescribed small "tonic" doses of quinine in the last few weeks of pregnancy. They believe it facilitates the process of labor and shortens the duration of labor, and by so doing it reduces the danger of hemorrhage and infection, all without risk to the child.

Dr. Ganner, of University of Birmingham, reported in the British Medical Journal that such use of quinine accelerates the first and second stages of labor without damage to mother or child, and that the chance of premature labor was not increased.

Dr. Linton Smith described in the Journal Medical Association of Georgia, results observed from such use of quinine in 60 normal pregnant women as compared with results in an equal number who received no quinine. He concluded that duration of labor was definitely shorter and that the first stage was less painful when the woman has had the quinine treatment in the last weeks of pregnancy.

The usual daily dose of quinine is 4 1-2 grains in three doses of 1 1-2 grains each, or some physicians believe only one grain three times a day, for the last three or four weeks of pregnancy, is sufficient. One British physician, Gordon Luker, considers it advisable in most cases to combine quinine treatment with calcium. A great many expectant mothers, at least in this country, now supplement their diet with additional calcium anyway.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Pellagra.

As I understand, pellagra is a disease caused by eating damaged maize, in which some poisonous product causes a disturbance in the digestive and nervous systems. (Mrs. W. W.)

Answer—Pellagra is a nutritional deficiency disease, not a condition due to any kind of poisoning by spoiled food. The chief factor is lack of enough niacin (formerly called nicotinic acid), one of the entities of the vitamin B complex in which such foods as plain wheat, wheat germ, fresh vegetables, fresh meat, peas, beans, and milk or milk products are rich.

Poisonous Spray Residue on Food. Can you recommend any effective way to remove arsenate of lead from such foods as cabbage, greens, fruit, etc., when dry residues left by spraying may be present? (E. B.)

Answer—Ordinary rinsing in water will not remove all the lead arsenate. Rinsing in one per cent solution of hydrochloric acid in water removes it. A pint of the standard medicinal dilute hydrochloric acid (which is 10 per cent strength) diluted in nine pints (a gallon and a pint) of water, makes such a one per cent hydrochloric acid solution. After rinsing the greens or fruit in plain water, rinse well in the 1 per cent HCl solution, then rinse well again in plain water to remove traces of the acid.

The Grass Yarn.

Read in a magazine that ordinary grass has been found to be the richest known source of all the vitamins, and that a little powdered dried grass will provide all the vitamins anyone needs at very low cost. (H. W. B.)

Answer—Probably fresh green grass contains considerable vitamin C, as well as B-complex. Dried powdered grass may still contain some B complex, but little if any C. Grass contains practically no vitamin D.

Veteran Actors Find It Hard To Hold Own With Child Stars

By Louella Parsons.

Playing that now-famous bomb shelter sequence in "Mrs. Miniver," Walter Pidgeon and Greer Garson had the keenest kind of competition in two whimpering children. "That scene belonged to the kids," said Pidgeon. "We never had a chance. It's much easier to bring in a four-horse parlay than steal a scene from a baby."

Every actor in Hollywood echoes Pidgeon's sentiments. Children, like animals, are born exhibitionists and their unconscious mugging keeps the average actor busier than a moth in a light-house.

More than one histrionic eyeball rolled and more than one actor's legs quaked this week when M-G-M called out 250 mopets for work on three pictures.

Bulk of this pre-adolescent avalanche rolled onto the "Journey for Margaret" set, where W. S. Van Dyke is directing the film version of W. L. White's best seller.

Sixty tots are assembled for a nursery school sequence. They squeal, titter and tussle with such gusto that Robert Young, starring in the picture, swallows hard and shrugs his shoulders.

"Just take a look at him," he nods toward one of the kids. "All he has to work with are two crayons and a pad of drawing paper, but he gets more action into it than the three Marx brothers doing a trained elephant routine."

The lad is Douglas Mull. His mother agrees with Young.

"Douglas gives a better performance than two steam shovels in a gravel pit," she admits, proudly, "but that's because he's a veteran. His sister, Nancy, now, is before the cameras for the first time. Her performance won't stand out like Douglas's."

Nancy Mull is working over on "The Man on America's Conscience" set, featuring Van Heflin and Lionel Barrymore.

"She's dynamite!" the white-gloved director, William Dieterle, exploded. "A full-blown trouper at 12 months."

Van Heflin looks at Nancy enviously.

"She doesn't speak any lines," he remarks, "but she coos like a dove. I have too many scenes with her. She's a chiseler."

Down the big lot a ways, on the "Clear for Action" stage, Robert Taylor is having his moments with the diaper division. Twenty-four-month moppets, most of them scarcely house-broken, portray victims of a passenger liner torpedoing. Nineteen of the babies are crying. One, and only one, refuses to howl. Instead, he rests in a sailor's brawny arms and grins as if he has just been put in personal charge of a dairy.

"You see," says Taylor, with a humorless smile, "that toothless grin will draw more attention than a bald head at a jitterbug jamboree."

On all three sets the children were having the time of their lives. Only the mothers appeared distressed.

"If Cecily doesn't blow her nose," one of the more nervous whispered to a friend, "I'll be too upset to go to welding school tonight."

Encased in shining armor, Diana Barrymore, as Joan of Arc, stood on the mountain peak of Universal's phantom stage for final scenes in "Between Us Girls." A few days before, Diana playing the role of an actress, had fled from Robert Cummings, who had been pursuing her most persistently. In this Joan of Arc dream-up, Diana was greeting the remnants of her armies—12 brave warriors with lances, their faces concealed behind steel visors. "Raise your visors, oh, brave warriors!" Diana commanded.

Eleven warriors obeyed. The twelfth appeared nervous. He bashed his helmet with his lance. He dropped his shield on his foot. He was struggling with his visor, which seemed to have stuck, when an electrician on the sidelines dashed into camera range to assist the fidgeting knight.

The troupe burst into laughter. Director Henry Koster was the most surprised man when the electrician got the visor open, revealing Cummings' flushed face. "You ruined the scene!" Koster screamed. "It was supposed to be like that."

Snuffy Smith, the electrician, was a very mortified man. "I thought Cummings was suffocating," he whimpered. Then he crept out of sight.

Unpatriotic To Order More Than You Can Eat

By Ida Jean Kain.

There are some changes due in restaurant dining. The table d'hôte lunches and dinners may well be shelved for the duration—and one of New York's leading restaurants has come out and said as much.

You know that food is wasted on the blanket order plan. If you pay for a several-course dinner, you feel you must at least sample what you are paying for. Usually you can't come anywhere near eating it all. What is left—often enough for another meal—is thrown away.

It has been estimated that in New York city alone enough food is thrown away each day to feed over a quarter of a million people. And our restaurant men seem to think the table d'hôte menu is one of the main reasons. To put his suggestion into effect, restaurant owners and managers would have to agree among themselves to abandon the practice of serving so many courses and then bring a la carte prices down so that it is cheaper for the customer to make a choice. When you pay for each dish separately, you are more likely to get what you want and to eat all of it.

The idea is good. People would be less inclined to waste food on to overeat. Some headway in this direction has already been made. As you know, some of the restaurants now offer the main course and beverage, with a choice of dessert or appetizer. Some invite you to order "only what you intend to use" and call attention to the fact that the ready dishes conserve food and save money.

Food has a more important meaning than ever before in the history of the world and it is up to us all—those who eat the meals as well as those who prepare the food—to save it in every way that we can. It is wasteful to order food that does not contribute toward our well being, so everyone should be familiar with the list of protective foods that is needed every day for a high level of health and nerves that can stand strain.

This is the protective list you need daily:

Milk and milk products—at least a pint for everyone and more for children. Alternative: cheese, or evaporated or dried milk.

Oranges, grapefruit or tomatoes—one of these, and raw cabbage or salad greens.

Greens or yellow vegetables—some raw and some cooked, one or more big servings.

Other fruits and vegetables, such as fruits in season and potatoes.

Bread and cereals—the whole grain or enriched kind.

Meat, poultry or fish and dried beans or peas occasionally.

Eggs—one daily preferably, but at least four a week.

Butter or enriched butter substitutes.

Send large, stamped return envelope for the "Protective Diet Chart." Address your request to Ida Jean Kain, in care of this paper.

Mexican Women Lead in Men's Work

Mexico's women are becoming leaders in spheres occupied until recently by men only. Although they have not yet won the suffrage, they are a factor in business and professions in Mexico City and other cities. In law, medicine and public office women are making a notable record. Girls are now crowding into business and are being welcomed in banks, business houses, and state, federal and municipal offices, where but a short time ago the rule "men only" was adhered to strictly in hiring employees. Mexico has recently acquired feminine engineers and even women bullfighters.

Miss Virginia Clower and her fiancé, Ensign Alton C. Cowles Jr., were honored at two parties yesterday. The first was a breakfast at which the groom-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Cowles, entertained at Mammy's Shanty.

The party took place at noon, and the invited guests were Mr. and Mrs. Phineas L. Clower, Miss Anne Louise Edell, of Nashville, Tenn.; Miss Anne Wallace, Miss Anne Lillian Mann, of Macon; Miss Elizabeth Cowles, Miss Glenwyn Young, and John S. Peach-colored gladioli in an antique silver bowl adorned the table in the dining room and silver candelabra held white tapers. A buffet supper was served 16 guests.

Mrs. Alton C. Cowles assisted her daughter in entertaining. The bride-elect was presented a bouquet of peach-colored gladioli tied with white satin ribbons. At the end of the ribbon streamers were cards inscribed with lines comprising a verse, which gave the clue as to where Miss Clower could find the gifts.

Each guest received a cluster of orchid gladioli to wear on her shoulder.

Solomon Isles Attack Old Marine Tactics

Corps Has Trained 167 Years for Such Offensive.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The offensive landing staged by U. S. Marines against the Japs in the Solomon islands "is something Marines have been trained to do for the past 167 years," Lieutenant General Thomas Holcombe, commandant of the U. S. Marine Corps, said in a broadcast tonight.

In an explanation of the exploit prepared for NBC's Red Network on the March of Time program between 10:30 and 11 p. m. (EWT) General Holcombe declared the war in the Pacific was an amphibious war and that the landing made by the Marines was a "specialty of our corps."

General Holcombe said a training operation "similar in most respects" to the Solomon islands landing had been staged on Solomon's Island—in the Chesapeake bay area.

Describes Attack.
"Ships arrived off shore," he said, describing the training. "Marines shoved off in fast landing boats, and at the prearranged time sped shoreward. During the run to the beach and throughout the attack, guns of the fleet and planes pinned the enemy to the ground with their shells and bombs."

"Upon reaching the beach, the first wave of Marines quickly followed by others, began the slow, difficult process of cutting through enemy wire and infiltrating through enemy lines."

He said that Marines had received special training in jungle warfare to prepare for operations in the South Pacific. Realistic training and individual combat were stressed as the day for attack came closer.

Post Graduate.
"But we must remember," he declared, "that specialized training for jungle warfare—training by parachute troops and special raiding battalions—is in the nature of post graduate training for a Marine. It is all superimposed upon the solid basis of physical vigor, discipline and soldierly virtues which are instilled in every Marine recruit from his first day at the recruit camp until the day he leaves the corps."

"The Marine Corps is proud that once again its men are taking part with the Navy, the Army and the forces of our Allies in offensive action."

"I share with you the anxieties of the hour, but I share them with the firm conviction that though there may be many anxious moments in the days to come, the righteousness of our cause and the valor of our forces will prevail."

Arnall Pledges Aid to Scotch 'Racial Issues'

Favors Appeal to Purge Campaign of 'Fake' Race Question.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Attorney General Ellis Arnall replied today to the Augusta Herald that the "fake" race issue in the gubernatorial campaign was promoted by his opponent, Governor Eugene Talmadge, and he would do his "best to eliminate" it.

The Herald, which telegraphed Arnall and Talmadge yesterday, asking them to purge the racial issue from the campaign, today telegraphed every daily newspaper in Georgia requesting they join with it in eliminating matter designed to appeal to race prejudice from political news reports.

Arnall wired Milwaukee Owens, editor of the Herald, that "at this time when our nation is fighting for its very existence, when our own flesh and blood are dying for the preservation of our democratic concept of life and government, it is little short of treason for any professional demagogue to undertake to destroy our national unity, our national loyalty and our national determination in an effort to save himself politically."

"Doctrine of Hypocrite."
At the beginning of his telegram, Arnall said "on July 4, 1940, in his opening address, my opponent said:
"Any doctrine that preaches class hatred in Georgia is a sin of the deepest dye. Any doctrine that preaches prejudice is merely the doctrine of a hypocrite who is trying to hide under a shadow for the purpose of stealing. No religious or racial prejudice has any place in a Christian heart."
Arnall said "I subscribe to this attitude."
He declared "My opponent promoted the 'fake' race issue" in the present campaign.
"The constitution of Georgia written by our illustrious forefathers guarantees separate schools for the white and black races," he said.

Appeal Is Praised.
Arnall pledged "I will do my best to eliminate this false issue from the campaign for governor, the outcome of which is so vitally important to the future welfare of Georgia."
Editor Owens, of the Herald, received a telegram from Mayor Roland R. Jones, of Savannah Beach, saying the appeal to newspapers was "the most outstanding effort

It's a pre-war type musical with all the lavish trimmings heaped on in grand style. The prize fight between the two stars is a highlight of the show.

"Eat Cheese," Says Your Uncle Sam

Homemakers, once more your own Uncle Sam steps up to speak to you through me. This time he wants to say "Use cheese!" "Why?" you ask. Because America's warehouses are bulging with cheese and Uncle Sam wants us to eat a part of it. To put the idea in more official language cheese has been declared the "Victory Food Special" for the period of August 17 to the 29th. These "Victory Food Specials" are designated by the United States Department of Agriculture because they're "super-abundant," and in co-operating with this program a homemaker directly is helping the war effort by making it easier for our government to supply foods to our fighting forces and to our Allies.

Cheese is an excellent food, and being a milk product it is rich in the same elements that make milk so valuable in the human diet. Actually cheese made from whole milk is milk in concentrated form, 1 1/4 pound of American cheese being equal in food value to 1 quart of milk. Cheese contains excellent proteins and can take the place of meat, fish or fowl in a meal, and it adds nourishment and flavor to many low-cost foods, such as rice, macaroni, grits, and potatoes.

To help with the war effort by eating cheese should be no hardship; it should prove a pleasant experience. Here are ideas to help you use cheese during those days when it occupies the spotlight as the "Victory Special."

Remember the one important rule in cheese cookery: Too much heat makes cheese tough and stringy—so, avoid high heat in cooking. Keep heat low enough to melt cheese slowly, then it is easily digested even by children.

Serve many vegetables with cheese sauce, onions and cabbage or pie.

Scallop potatoes, cabbage, corn, beans, with cheese sauce.

Combine mixed left-over vegetables in a hot cheese sauce.

Serve a grating of cheese over any hot soup.

Use cheese freely in salads.

Serve cheese and fruits together for sugar-saving and very nutritious desserts.

And now for some recipes:

Dessert Tray (Pictured).

- American cheese
- Peaches
- Pears or plums
- Lemon juice
- Honey
- Grapes or nectarines

Have cheese cut into thick slices. Dip fruits in lemon juice to prevent discoloration and put a little honey in each cavity, if desired. Arrange fruit and cheese on a pretty tray and serve with crackers and coffee or tea.

Cheese Sauce

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

Melt butter and add flour, stirring to keep smooth. Cook over moderate heat 5 minutes then add salt, lemon juice, paprika and cheese and cook, stirring until cheese is melted and sauce is smooth.

Sweet Tooth Corner

Since sugar rationing has become a part of our daily routine, there is a merry exchange of recipes for sugar-saving desserts going on. Wherever women gather the topic of conversation sooner or later is sure to turn upon sweet-tooth satisfy-ers. I have printed quite a few sugar-saving recipes, yet only this week a number of requests have come in for more.

So today I'm offering ideas for cakes and cookies that use little sugar, and since I have had requests for large-quantity recipes from women who make cookies for the USO or for their canteen or other war work, I am concluding with "quantity cookie recipes."

Do you who make cookies for soldiers nobly save from your own sugar ration for this purpose? The quantity recipes below call for sugar, but in any recipe, honey or syrup may be substituted for all or part of the sugar.

Defense Cake.

Defense cake substitutes white corn syrup for part of the sugar. Experiments have proved that a perfectly good cake can be made with all corn syrup, but it will lack sweetness, so to satisfy the yearning for sweets, we use a small amount of sugar for flavor.

Cream 1-2 cup butter or margarine until very soft, then add 1-2 cup sugar and 1-2 cup white corn syrup and beat until thoroughly blended. Sift together 2 cups sifted cake flour, 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt.

Add 3 tablespoons of this to the syrup mixture, mix, then beat in 2 egg yolks. Next stir in 1-3 cup milk, the rest of the flour and 1 teaspoon grated orange or lemon rind. Beat until smooth, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of 2 eggs and pour into two greased layer cake pans. Bake at 375 degrees (moderate oven) for 20 minutes. Remove from the oven and cool. Put the layers together with Sugarless

Marshmallow Icing: Put 2 unbeaten egg whites and 1 cup white corn syrup in a double boiler over hot water. Heat the water just to the boiling point. Beat the egg whites and syrup with an egg beater constantly while the water boils, continuing the beating until the icing is thick and fluffy. Add 8 to 10 fresh marshmallows, pulled into pieces and beat with a spoon until the marshmallows melt. Remove from over the hot water and continue beating until the icing holds up in peaks.

Ginger Crumb Chees make a unique delicacy. Serve them with lemonade and be sure you provide plenty! Mix 1 cup very fine, dry bread crumbs with 1-2 cup soft brown sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon ginger and 1-2 teaspoon baking soda. Beat 2 eggs and mix with 1 tablespoon melted butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1-3 cup dark molasses. Stir this into the bread crumb mixture and mix well. Drop from a teaspoon about two inches apart on a greased baking pan and bake in a moderate oven—375 degrees—for 15 or 20 minutes or until brown. Remove from the pans at once and put on a rack or a clean towel to cool.

Cinnamon Sticks: Soften 1-2 cup butter or margarine until creamy, beat in 1-4 cup sugar and 1-3 cup white corn syrup. Add 1 well-beaten egg. Sift 2 cups plus 2 tablespoons flour with 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon baking powder and work into the first mixture to make a soft dough. Chill the dough, then roll half of it at a time to about 1-2 inch thickness. Mix 1 teaspoon cinnamon with 2 tablespoons sifted confectioner's sugar. Cut the dough into strips 2 to 3 inches long and a scant half-inch wide. Dip the ends of each strip in the cinnamon mix and place on a greased sheet an inch apart. Bake about 10 minutes or until brown in a moderate oven.

Chocolate Chip Cookies. (Makes 5 dozen medium-sized.) 3-4 cup shortening. 3-4 cup brown sugar. 3-8 cup granulated sugar. 1 egg. 1 3-4 cups flour. 3-8 teaspoon soda. 3-4 teaspoon salt. 3-4 teaspoon vanilla. 3-4 cup walnut meats. 3-4 cup sweet chocolate cut in small pieces.

Cream shortening and add sugar gradually. Blend in well beaten egg, then flour, soda and salt. Add vanilla, nuts and chocolate. Drop by teaspoons on baking sheet, about two inches apart. Bake 10 minutes at 400 degrees, and let stand 10 minutes to cool before removing from sheet.

How Much To Buy? Young cooks are not the only ones who have trouble estimating the exact amount which should be bought for a given number of servings. Here are tips on vegetable servings:

Dried Kidney Beans: As purchased, 1 cup equals 2 1-2 cups when cooked.

Fresh Lima Beans: One pound in pods serves two. One pound of shelled beans yields 6 ordinary servings.

Dried Lima Beans: One cup equals 2 when cooked.

Snap Beans (green and yellow): One pound serves four.

Fresh Yams: Allow 3 or 4 small beets for each serving.

Turnip Greens: One pound serves 4.

Brussels Sprouts: One quart of fresh compact heads should serve 6.

Fresh Cabbage (green or red): One pound yields 3 1-2 cups shredded salad or 2 1-2 cups cooked.

Fresh Carrots: One pound (6 medium-sized carrots, excluding tops) serves 3.

Cauliflower: One pound serves 2 or 3.

Celery: One medium-sized bunch weighs about 1-2 pound and yields 2 servings of raw heart celery, plus about 3-4 cup outer stalks, diced for use in cooked dishes. For braised or creamed celery, allow 1-2 cup diced per serving.

Chicory: One large head averages about 1 pound; yields greens for 6 salads.

Herbs in Cooking

There has been a revival of an old art this year—that of herb growing. Formerly we relied almost entirely upon importations of dried herbs grown principally in Russia and the Balkans. But shipping space now is reserved for the most urgent military needs and America once again is showing her independence in growing her own seasonings. In big cities tiny plots, even window boxes were growing parsley, peppermint, chives and tarragon this summer. And if you were not among those who tried herb growing this year, surely you'll do it next season because imported supplies are dwindling, and may completely disappear before the war is over.

Requests have come in from these new herb growers for ideas for herb cookery. This article is an attempt to answer these requests.

Rule No. 1 in herb cookery is that the herb taste should never stand out so prominently that it can be recognized definitely. Just enough of it to make the diner say, "What an interesting seasoning, what is it? Um-m-m! What did you put in this?" The longer the herb is in the food the more the oils will be released, and heat acts more quickly upon the oils than does cold. Therefore add herbs to soups or stews about 45 minutes before the end of the cooking time; let herbs stand several hours or overnight in cold foods such as salad dressings and vegetable cocktails.

How much to use? An old-fashioned rule gives you the clue: "A good rule to follow, in seasoning, therefore, is to use a scant quarter-teaspoon to each serving for four; and you soon will discover that herbs used with care, will glorify all that you cook or prepare."

Here's a list of the most aristocratic members of the herb family and the foods they have affinity for:

Ex-Grid Stars Digging Ditches At English Bases

By WES GALLAGHER.
WITH THE U. S. AIR FORCE IN BRITAIN, Aug. 13.—(P)—First-while American football stars are digging ditches and some of the best civilian and Army aviation experts of the United States are converting centuries-old English estates into great air bases in a rush to send hundreds of bombers over Germany daily.

A completed 1,000-mile air tour of United States bases in Britain today with Major General Walter Hale Frank, chief of the Service Command, to get a first-hand view of the vast aerial smash the United States air forces are planning. American engineering ingenuity is preparing for the offensive at dazzling speed.

The United States air effort in this theater dwarfs by far anything previously attempted by any nation in trying to build up a vast striking force thousands of miles away from home. Plans are weeks ahead of schedule under the direction of General Frank, who has spent much of his life as a tactical airman and protests that he "knows nothing about this service end of the business."

Estates Transformed.
In two days' flying in a troop transport with General Frank at the controls part of the time, some of the things seen were these:

1. Thousands of American civilian technicians working side by side with British laborers tearing famous old estates apart and slicing long runways across the hunting grounds. Giant hangars are rising from lawns which once were beautifully landscaped.

2. Machine shops equal in size to some of the largest in the United States rising from bogs where a month ago the silence was unbroken except by singing birds.

3. Highly skilled American aviation machinists working from dawn to dusk as stevedores in their eagerness to speed the unloading of ships and get the shops built.

4. Vast hangars and storerooms partly underground, staffed by United States soldiers who within two weeks after moving in, unpacked and dispatched many carloads of spare parts to dispersal points in 48 hours.

5. At least one wealthy, retired American business man, too old for the Army, wading knee deep through mud, digging drainage ditches as his share of the war effort.

Frank, who is concerned with servicing and repairing warplanes and those of the Ferry Command as well as providing a pool of personnel and planes, has under his control the equivalent of several of the biggest airplane factories.

"We are going to service not only all our own planes but also all the American planes used by the RAF," he said. "The British will overhaul and repair any British planes the Americans will be using."

The genial general, whose son-in-law was one of the heroes of the Midway sea victory, worked at top speed during the two-day tour completing in minutes negotiations which in peacetime would require weeks.

Bulldozers Used.
One of the principal stops was made at a huge base under construction jointly by an aircraft company and the Army. By arrangement, the company has been able to draw the most able machinists and aviation experts from other United States concerns. When completed the base will service every type of American plane.

Less than two months ago, the base was an old English estate. Peaches and grapes still grow in its greenhouses, but a short distance away bulldozers brought from New York gouge out the terraced landscape to make way for a hangar.

Wading in the mud near the long runways which split the estate's hunting grounds were Ford Palmer, former University of Southern California football star, and Harry Mattos, another gridiron luminary from St. Mary's (Cal.) College.

Army men speeding the construction included Major Gaspar G. Bacon, former lieutenant governor of Massachusetts.

Edwin C. Lear, nephew of Lieutenant General Ben Lear of "Yoo hoo" fame, keeps the camp of thousands of men entertained with shows.

Local residents are amazed by the gadgets the Americans brought to speed up work. These included a portable machine for X-raying planes to discover defects without dismantling the craft.

Although the establishment covers hundreds of acres, it is so well hidden that we could not locate it when we flew over the base on the second leg of our trip.

Private Acquitted By Court-Martial

SOMEWHERE IN BRITAIN, Aug. 13.—(P)—The first United States Army general court-martial in Britain today acquitted Private Travis P. Hammond, 25, of charges of criminal assault.

Hammond, whose home is in Kellie, Texas, was accused of assaulting a 16-year-old English shopgirl who said she met him at a Y. M. C. A. canteen and accompanied him and another couple to several pubs and then to an air raid shelter.

The 11-man court deliberated two hours before reaching a verdict. The trial lasted four days.

Hammond was not released immediately. The court said only that he would not be freed "at this time."

In his closing argument for the defense, Captain Lester Prichard said the evidence showed that Hammond used no force against the girl; in fact, that she consented to his advances.

He said the behavior of the girl who, the defense contended, went voluntarily to the air raid shelter "was not the action of a person who was purely innocent."

CIO, AFL Ready For Peace Parley

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—(P)—President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, announced late today that Harry C. Bates, of AFL's bricklayers' union, and President Philip Murray, of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, would meet in Washington next week to fix the time and place for opening formal negotiations looking to an AFL-CIO merger into "one national labor movement."

Green revealed that Bates, as chairman of AFL's peace committee, had conferred by phone during the day with Murray.

Bates and Murray agreed, Green said, to a Washington meeting "on Tuesday or Wednesday" to arrange the setting for the peace talk.

The CIO will be represented in the negotiati is by a committee headed by Murray and including R. J. Thomas and Julius Emspak.

Bates' associates at the peace table will be AFL Vice Presidents Daniel Tobin and William L. Hutcheson.

FARMERS MEET.

ELLAVILLE, Ga., Aug. 13.—The Schley County Farm Bureau held a meeting today at the courthouse. Following a short business meeting, H. L. Wingate, president of the State Farm Bureau, spoke on parity and what the farmer must do to secure fair prices.

Snellville Boy Killed on Highway
Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., Aug. 13.—Albert Johnston, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Homer Johnston, of Snellville, was killed this morning on the highway, when it is reported he stepped from behind a road scraper and was struck by an automobile occupied by three men, whose names were not obtained here. He is survived by his parents; five brothers, J. T., Alfred, Charlie, James and Andrew Jackson Johnston; one sister, Miss Lilla Johnston, all of Snellville.

Marietta Farmer Is To 'Live At Home, Board at Same Place'

MARIETTA, Ga., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Croft Sanders believe they have found the happy way for farm living and keep their food bill down at the same time. This year they harvested 100 bushels of wheat for the family. Surplus grain will go to feed a flock of 125 chickens which supply more than enough eggs and chickens for the family table the year round.

Ten head of cattle, including four milk cows, furnish both beef for canning and milk and dairy products. Sanders plans to butcher three hogs for meat this fall. He has approximately five acres in miscellaneous truck crops and five acres in sweet potatoes. He expects to harvest 400 bushels of sweet potatoes for marketing above home needs. Mrs. Sanders approximates her canning at 600 quarts of fruits, vegetables and meats. Food that cannot be raised on the farm is bought with money from sale of surplus eggs, dairy products and vegetables.

20,000 Japs Said on Move By Transport

New Attack by 'Sky Dragons' Reported in China.

CHUNGKING, Aug. 13.—(AP)—A Japanese transport fleet carrying more than 20,000 troops was seen in the Gulf of Tonkin off southernmost China last Saturday—the day before United States bombers based in China blasted Haiphong, French Indo-China port on the gulf—a Chinese Army spokesman disclosed tonight.

(There was no immediate indication whether the aerial attack had any relation with the troop ship movement. The Chinese spokesman said he had no information where the convoy was headed. Such a troop movement might be to reinforce the invaders' bases for a thrust toward India.)

A communique from Lieutenant General Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters said the American "Sky Dragons" had carried out a new attack Tuesday, battering the Japanese-held town of Yoyang (Yochow) in the northeastern corner of Hunan province. "The raid was highly successful," the communique said, "and all the American planes returned to their bases."

China's troops kept up their attacks from the northeast and southeast against the central Kiangsi stronghold of the invaders at Linchwan (Fuchow) where an Army spokesman said the Japanese had massed fully 20,000 men—40 per cent of their strength in Kiangsi.

A Chinese communique said fighting there was heavy. A spokesman disclosed that Chinese forces who had smashed into Hunan, 12 miles south of Linchwan, had withdrawn from the town late last week after holding it for several days.

The Chinese high command said that a Japanese drive south in considerable strength toward the Fukien province border from Kwangtung, in eastern Kiangsi, and Kiangshan, just across the frontier in Chekiang province, had been repulsed in bloody fighting. China observed the day as the fifth anniversary of the start of the Battle of Shanghai, and an Army newspaper declared that the nation "is determined to counter-attack at an early date" and "win the city back."

CD Is Enlisting Beach Patrolmen

Charles H. Murchison, regional civilian defense director, announced yesterday his office had been requested to assist in recruiting men in six southeastern states for Coast Guard beach patrol and coastal lookout duty.

His offices said it was the first time the regional civilian defense organization had been called on for co-operation in recruiting for the armed services.

Murchison's announcement said that Rear Admiral L. T. Chalker, acting commander of the Coast Guard, said a temporary reserve on full-time duty would be enlisted from men barred from regular enlistment because of age or physical defects. These men would free personnel now on patrol who can qualify for duty at sea or in first line combat.

The conferences will be attended by Representative peanut farmers and by congressmen and senators from Georgia and other peanut-producing areas.

(Strafer) Gott, British expert on desert warfare, had been "killed when an airplane in which he was a passenger was shot down by enemy aircraft." The death already had been reported in the London press although the circumstances had not been announced.

Local Venereal Situation 'Bad,' Says French

Atlanta 3d Among Army Centers in Southeast in Infections.

While the Fourth Service Command is proud of the record it has made in health work among the thousands of soldiers over the southeast, the venereal disease situation in Atlanta still "is very bad," Colonel Sanford W. French, Fourth Service Command surgeon, said yesterday.

Atlanta ranks third among Army centers in the southeast for instances of venereal disease infection, Colonel French said. Columbus, Ga., is ranked first for venereal infections, and Jacksonville, Fla., is second.

There has been no epidemic of any disease at any of the camps, the surgeon continued. The health of the men in camps now actually is better than during peace times, despite the fact that so many have been inducted since the Selective Service program started.

Malaria, meningitis, pneumonia and venereal diseases are the ones guarded against in the southeast, Colonel French said. Speaking for the entire area, he said they all are "conspicuous by their absence."

Reed To Discuss Food Measuring

W. P. Reed, chief inspector of weights and measures for the Atlanta Police Department, will speak at 3 o'clock tomorrow before the "Facts for Consumers" class held at the Atlanta Consumer Information Center, at 1032 Peachtree street.

Reed will discuss conditions he finds in inspecting and testing weighing equipment in and around Atlanta, using illustrative materials. His subject will be: "Do You Get Full Measure When You Buy?"

Dr. Grady Coker To Speak Tonight

Dr. Grady Coker, of Canton, former Talmadge supporter and former member of the house of representatives, will speak over WSB from 7:30 to 7:45 o'clock tonight in behalf of the candidacy of Ellis Arnall for Governor.

One of the many prominent men to switch their allegiance to support Arnall's candidacy, Dr. Coker has been a Talmadge stalwart in past political campaigns.

'Bugs' Baer Says:

We're having a big argument over whether you should souse, sprinkle or fan an incendiary bomb with your hat.

One school of thought favors the jet method of deluging the bomb. A safer method is to pray for rain. Still, another group wants everything done formally and insists that the firemen wear their rubber boots.

All of which proves that even our screwballs are suffering from divided command. My idea of dealing with fire bombs is to pass the deal.

Either get that bomb out quick or get out yourself. When you see a bomb, throw your mattress over it and sleep out.

Shopping List Now Includes Horse, Buggy

Hard-pressed automobile dealers have at last given up the struggle (buggy) and gone back to that primitive era known as "horse and buggy days," it seems.

Showing that adaptability characteristic of American industry, the Hall Motor Company figured that even if it couldn't sell cars, there were certainly no priorities on horses.

Realizing that many people would be happy to get more than 15 miles to the bale (of hay), the company ran a want-ad in The Constitution yesterday proudly advertising a "Tennessee-bred walking horse, work buggy or plow."

Try it for your shopping, ladies. It's gentle enough for woman or child to handle, so says the ad.

Rev. Tucker To Visit City In September

Will Conduct Consecration Services for Bishop-Elect Rev. Walker.

The Most Rev. H. St. John Tucker, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church of the United States, will come here September 29 to conduct the services of consecration for the Rev. John Moore Walker, bishop-elect, it was announced yesterday.

All the bishops of surrounding dioceses will take part in the elevation of the Atlanta to the high church post.

The ceremonies, to be held at St. Luke's Episcopal church, where Dr. Walker has been rector for many years, will begin at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, September 29, and plans are being made for the services which will be one of the highlights of the year in Episcopal circles.

A program of special music will be presented under the direction of Hugh Hodgson, St. Luke's organist and master of choristers. Church officials announced that an evening prayer service will be held at the church at 8 o'clock Tuesday night, September 29, with Bishop Tucker preaching.

The day following Bishop Walker's consecration, Bishop Tucker will conduct a conference among the clergy and the laity which will begin in the morning and extend through a luncheon session.

Dr. Walker was elected to the position of bishop following the death of Bishop H. J. Mikell.

Five Georgia Women Take WAAC Oath

First Enlisted Group From State Is Inducted.

Georgia's first enlisted WAAC's, a group of five, including three Atlantans, were sworn into the Army at Fort McPherson yesterday—the first contingent of a number to be taken in each week here during the coming months.

Standing calmly at attention, the group was administered the oath by Lieutenant Eugene J. Honeycutt, assistant recruiting induction officer, at the Induction Station where hundreds of their male fellow Army members had been ushered into military life before them.

The three Atlantans—Mary Martha Kelly, of 1354 Peachtree street; Betty Brewer, of 551 Clifton road, N. E., and Helen Leona Hickam, of 1089 West Peachtree street—will report to the commanding officer at the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps school at Des Moines, Iowa, next Monday.

All Young, Pretty.
Frances Victoria Clary, of Athens, who was attending graduate school at the University of Georgia before she applied for the WAAC, will report to Des Moines in approximately a month. Mary Pittman Robison, of Thomasville, will go to the Aircraft Warning Service filter center there for temporary duty before going to Des Moines August 24.

At Des Moines, the group—all of whom are young and quite pretty—will receive six weeks of training before being assigned as specialists. Of the Georgians, one will be a WAAC typist, one a stenographer, one an administrative specialist, one a general clerk and the other for special duty.

Of their reasons for wanting to join the service, Miss Hickam, who used to be in the accounting division of Postal Telegraph, put it this way:

"I just figure that this war is so serious that everybody possible ought to be in it."

17 Each Month.
The entire group took this induction course last week, but seriously—though they didn't forget to powder their noses just before the big moment came.

Future Georgia WAAC applicants, who will come in at Fort McPherson each Tuesday at the rate of about 17 per month, will be put through much the same routine as men going through the reception center. Principal difference in their processing will be that WAAC's always get their mental alertness test before they are accepted, while soldiers get theirs after induction. The women get physical examinations at the station hospital.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
VIDALIA, Ga., Aug. 13.—The Vidalia Tobacco Board of Trade today decided to close the market here after the sale of Friday, August 21, it being thought that the remaining poundage could be brought in and shipped by that time.

The announcement was made by Wes Boland, warehouseman at the Big Brick warehouse, who said that the prices paid for tobacco this year were the highest since he had been on the Georgia market.

Spalding Health Board

Fights Venereal Disease

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
GRiffin, Ga., Aug. 13.—Dr. T. O. Vinson, health commissioner for Griffin and Spalding county, said here today that the health department was bending every effort to eradicate syphilis from this community.

Dr. Vinson asserted that during the past six months 102 cases had been declared noncontagious after treatment and dismissed. A total of 7,377 treatments were given to sufferers, both white and colored. Some 450 cases, 174 being new cases, were treated during that period.

Athen's Mother Learns

Son Listed as 'Missing'

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 13.—Mrs. Sue White, of this city, has received notice from the War Department that her son, Lieutenant John I. Renka Jr., is listed as "missing" following the fighting in the Philippines.

The notice said, however, it is possible that he is a prisoner in the Philippines but that the list had not been released by the Japanese.

Lieutenant Renka was a heavy bomber pilot and had the distinction of piloting one of the heavy bombers under Colonel Eugene Eubanks that flew from the west coast to the Philippines to go into action, a flight that set a record for long-distance flying for such heavy aircraft.

Rains Aid Vegetable

Gardens in Hancock

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
SPARTA, Ga., Aug. 13.—The canning industry in Hancock county which was on the wane because of the hot sun burning up the vegetables, has been revived by the rains of the past few days and the housewives are hard at work again. The government suggestion that food be saved for freedom has been accepted in earnest here and thousands of cans have already been put up.

The local cannery started with 50,000 cans and has placed frequent new orders during the summer. It is thought that more than double this number will be used by the end of the summer and during the fall and winter months as the farmers expect to can beef and pork in the same cannery.

All indications point to food for this winter, at least, and most farmers are enthusiastic over raising more and more food.

Don't envy anyone who picked did. Find one exactly like it in up a splendid used car. Do as HE the Want Ads of The Constitution.

Dodge Dies; Quarrel With Wife Revealed

Mate Struck Three Times Before
Arrest.

DETROIT, Aug. 13.—(AP)—John Duval Dodge, 43, son of the late millionaire automotive manufacturer, John F. Dodge, died tonight in Receiving hospital.

Dodge's death came a few hours after a woman reported she saw a man pry a screen from a window at the home of Howard E. Lange, on Van Dyke Place.

Saw Him Drinking.
Dodge was taken into custody after a woman reported she saw a man pry a screen from a window at the home of Howard E. Lange, on Van Dyke Place.

The prosecutor said Mrs. Dodge went to Lange's and was admitted by Miss Mignon Fontaine, whom he described as "a roomer in the Lange home."

Dodge returned.
Mrs. Dodge was taken home by friends, Dodge continued, and Dodge also left for a time. Meanwhile, Miss Fontaine returned and retired to an upstairs bedroom, he said.

The prosecutor added: "Dodge then returned to the house through the front door, and tried to gain admittance to her room but the door was locked. He then opened a window, knocked the screen out, to get into the dust porch."

That is how a neighbor woman was awakened and saw him trying to get back into the house through a door leading to the bedroom. He was unable to get in.

"By the time the officers got there Dodge had gotten back into the house and Miss Fontaine had fled."

Dowling said he had concluded that the excitement in the Lange home probably had brought on Dodge's condition of coma, probably a cerebral hemorrhage, or stroke.

Assignments Are Made for Airborne Units

Orders for 880,000
Trucks and Trailers
Also Announced.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The assignment of Colonel Elbridge G. Chapman Jr., of Arcadia, Cal., to command the airborne command at Fort Bragg, N. C., in succession to Brigadier General William C. Lee, was announced by the War Department today.

General Lee was assigned last week to command the 101st airborne division, one of the two streamlined and completely airborne divisions now being organized.

Major General C. L. Scott, of Urich, Ala., who returned recently from a tour of several months of duty in Egypt as an observer, has been assigned to command the armored force replacement training center at Fort Knox, Ky., it was announced.

He succeeds Brigadier General Thompson Lawrence, of New York City, who will remain at Fort Knox as a member of the headquarters staff of the armored force.

Secretary of War Stimson also announced that on a single day recently the War Department contracted for 880,000 trucks and trailers of various types, estimated to cost more than $1,500,000, with 41 manufacturers receiving awards. Most of the new vehicles will have wood bodies, in place of steel, with an estimated saving of 75,000 tons of steel this year and 350,000 next year.

He also announced the pooling of the Army's tank cars to assure more efficient operation of gasoline shipping facilities for military purposes, estimating that the cost of the cars would be increased by at least 30 per cent.

OPA Lifts Lid on 25 Services; Shoe Shine Price Can Jump

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The government took the lid off the price of shoe shines today.

Further, beginning Wednesday, the jeweler who fixes your watch can charge just as much as the traffic will bear—and Price Administrator Leon Henderson won't have a word to say about it.

If you board dogs or do horse-shoeing or make a specialty of getting rid of termites, price ceilings are off, too.

These services were among 25 specifically exempted by the Office of Price Administration today on the ground that they had "little relation to the cost of living."

Revised Regulations.
In addition to announcing the exemptions, OPA revised regulations controlling the price of 91 important groups of services, ranging from domestic laundries to stevedoring, which annually cost the nation about $5,000,000,000.

Services covered by the new regulations included repair and rental of automobiles, bicycles, business machinery, store and kitchen equipment, development and printing of photographs, consumer services such as shoe repairing, dry cleaning, hair blocking and cleaning, picture framing, repairs to radios and knife sharpening, agricultural services such as repair of farm machinery, commission selling, grinding, mixing, bagging and filling of fertilizer, grain on a custom basis, and industrial services such as car loading, rental of transportation equipment, sand-blasting and steam cleaning of buildings, and services of custom house brokers.

All of the 61 services formerly were controlled by specific service price ceilings, or by the general maximum price regulation prescribing use of the highest prices charged in March, 1942.

Price Determinants.
The revised regulation requires firms offering the 61 services to fix their rates by using the same pricing methods they used in March. If no pricing method used in that month fits the service now offered, the sellers must determine a maximum price by:

1. Using the highest price charged for the same service supplied in March.
2. Using the highest offering price for the same service in March.
3. Using the highest March price for a similar service supplied.

4. Or using the highest March offering price for a similar service. If none of these is applicable, the seller is permitted to establish his price according to those charged by competitors, or use the same pricing method which he used in supplying any other service last March. In the latter instance, OPA must approve the price finally established.

At the same time, Henderson disclosed that price regulations were being drafted covering certain forms of printing, and services involved in the repair, construction and maintenance of buildings.

Chile President Will Visit U. S., Santiago Hears

Rios Invited by Roosevelt, Says Foreign Office Announcement.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The foreign office announced tonight that President Juan Antonio Rios had been invited by President Roosevelt to visit the United States, and usually well-informed circles said the Chilean chief executive had decided to accept.

This was learned a short time after Foreign Minister Ernesto Barros said in an interview that the Chilean government believes it is able to carry out the Rio de Janeiro accords without congressional ratification. Those accords include a recommendation by Pan-American nations for severance of diplomatic relations with the Axis.

(In recent days acts and utterances of Chilean officials have indicated an appreciable trend toward the stand of Pan-American nations against the Axis. Chile and Argentina are the only two Pan-American republics which have severed diplomatic ties with Germany, Italy and Japan.)

Barros said the government did not intend to send the accords to congress for ratification, although Chile signed with provision that ratification would be necessary for the agreements to be binding.

Although Chile has not broken with the Axis, Barros cited Chile's participation in various inter-American conferences after the Rio de Janeiro meeting in January as evidence Chile was carrying out the accords. Among those he mentioned was the Inter-American Conference of Political Defense of the Continent at Montevideo.

Beer Retailers To Study Enforcement at Camps

A program of "clean up or close up" in the vicinity of Army camps will be discussed by the beer retailers of Fulton county beginning at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the Chamber of Commerce.

Judge John S. Wood, state director of the Brewing Industry Foundation, sponsors of the meeting, will explain in detail a program outlined by the Georgia committee which is designed to keep beer retailing on a lawful, decent plane. City, county and state officials have been invited.

"GAS PRESSURE NEARLY TOOK MY BREATH AWAY"; DECLARES POW-O-LIN GAVE HAPPY RELIEF

"Everything I Ate Hurt Me So I Had to Prop Myself Up in Bed to Get My Breath," Declares Mrs. Williams. Tells How Pow-o-lin Relieved Her Distress.

Among the thousands of happy men and women throughout Atlanta and this section of Georgia, none can be more grateful to Pow-o-lin than Mrs. Frances Williams, well-known resident of Route 7, Atlanta. Mrs. Williams declares:

"I don't believe you could have found a more miserable woman in all Georgia than I was. I had gotten to the point where I was almost afraid to eat, for everything I forced hurt me with indigestion and gas pressure that made me feel short of breath. I felt so stuffy and smothery I couldn't get sound sleep and at times the gas and bloating was so bad I had to prop myself up in bed in order to breathe. I ate so little I felt undernourished, dizzy and weak, my energy seemed to be slipping away and I didn't feel like doing anything. The toxic wastes of constipation clogged my intestines, making me feel achy and sluggish and I had to take strong laxatives that kept me upset and weakened. No matter what I tried, nothing seemed to give me any relief and I was worried nearly to death about myself."

MRS. FRANCES WILLIAMS

"I read about Pow-o-lin and the great good it was doing and decided to try it. I am happy that I did, for this grand herb medicine brought me the only relief I ever got from my suffering. I now enjoy eating and am relieved of the gas and bloating, nervousness and weak feeling. I don't have to take strong laxatives, sleep fine and feel refreshed and ready for anything when day comes. I wouldn't take anything for the happy relief Pow-o-lin gave me."

Pow-o-lin is a purely herbal laxative preparation for the relief of distress as harassed Mrs. Williams when due to constipation. Thousands praise it. Pow-o-lin may be obtained at all Jacobs Drug Stores, 1.25 size special 98c. Mail orders add 10c.—(adv.)
